Author Makes Distinction Between Taming, Domestication

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.)—The controversial issue of animal rights and one man's view of it was the subject of the June edition of Ag Issues Forum. In the regular meeting of selected farmers and agribusiness leaders, Stephen Budiansky, the senior writer for U.S. News and World Report, said part of the problem is the lack of recognition of the biological nature of the domesticated animal.

"The key here is that a lot of us don't make a clear distinction between taming and domestication," Budiansky said. "You can tame a wolf, a lot of people have, but the wolf will still have territorial reality, hunting instincts and

RED LION (York Co.) — Like a sheltering, cupped hand, a panorama of steep hills curls around Dun-Val Farm in southern York County. Nestled at the foot of the undulating contours of hay, corn, and grain is the farmstead of George and Orpha Innerst family.

Born and raised on this Red Lion R3 family farm, George Innerst has become accustomed to cultivating slopes that might send a flatland farmer fleeing his leaning tractor seat.

"When Dad bought the farm, he said it would never be farmed with a tractor because of the steepness," said the veteran dairy farmer.

But in 1942, some years after his father's Depression-era purchase of the Dunkard Valley Farm, the Innersts' first tractor arrived to begin replacing the horse-team-

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — Public hearings with the state Department of Environmental Resources can be revealing, according to Donald Duncan, a Berks County farmer and political activist.

Duncan and about 100 citizens of Berks County's Heidelberg Township gathered Wednesday evening at Conrad Weiser High School to attend a public hearing held by DER as part of a waste-dumping repermitting process.

"I was surprised by some of the information which came out and the lack of good answers from DER," Duncan said. "I feel that DER definitely goes by the book, LANDENBERG (Chester Co.). — Leon Wilkinson remembers the day before the President arrived.

Three helicopters swept in from the skies, deploying secret service agents and special equipment. Their task: find the best landing site for the helicopter bearing President Ronald Reagan.

To Wilkinson, the President's visit to his farm symbolizes America's past, in a way — a time when the country took farming seriously, when farmers were upheld and where people were thankful for the abundant, inexpensive food.

Now, he worries that schools are riding the "less-fat-is-healthy" bandwagon, reducing outlays of milk products in school. And what this dairy farmer doesn't understand is why the same kids who are forced to accept a nearly tasteless, lower-in-fat product in school are allowed to go home and sip even less healthy sodas.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Thursday, June 18, 1992

Trucklot buying interest ranged fairly good to good. Boneless skinless breasts were in good balance with demand. Some buyer inquiries for next weeks needs went unfilled. Trading was at steady prices. Line run breasts were in close balance to tight. However, some buyers were cautious and limited receipts to commitments and immediate needs. Legs and wings were balanced. Leg quarters were short of filling an active demand. Trading was at higher prices and the undertone was firm.

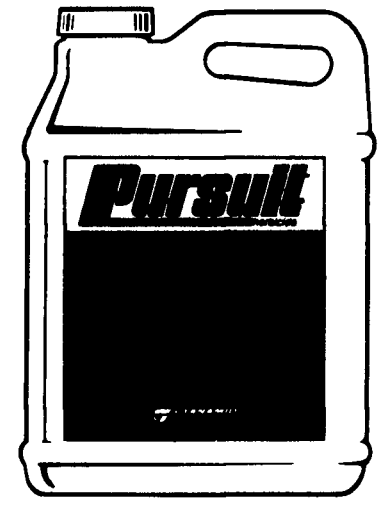
FOR DOUBLE-CROP SOYBEANS, THERE'S ONLY ONE LEADER OF THE PACK.

PURSUIT® herbicide is today's best tool for double-crop beans. It not only delivers the highest degree of overall weed control, it's also the only postemergence product that combines contact and residual activity to give you superior control of more than 40 tough-to-control grasses and broadleaf weeds. Including velvetleaf, foxtails, cocklebur, pigweeds, nightshades, common ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflower, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass. Without causing crop injury. And because of its advanced chemistry and low rates of application, PURSUIT offers a responsible choice for the environment. That's the kind of leadership everyone can respect. And reason enough to try PURSUIT. See us soon.



Always read and follow label directions carefully.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JUNE 15-21, 1992

PROPITIOUS TIME FOR MARRIAGE.

SUMMERTIME

The Summer Solstice, the first day of summer in the northern hemisphere, arrives on June 20, at 10:14 P.M EST, when the Sun reaches the Tropic of Cancer, (23 ½° north latitude) People who live at this latitude (in the town of Georgetown in the Bahamas, for instance) see the Sun directly overhead at noon The rest of us notice that the Sun is higher in the sky throughout the day, and its rays strike the earth at more direct angle, causing the more efficient warming we call summer In the winter, just the opposite occurs the Sun, at 23½° south latitude, is low in the sky as seen from the northern hemisphere and its rays hit the earth at an oblique angle, creating the feeble sunlight we expect in winter

A summer's sun is worth the having.

— French Proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

To remove spots on paper lampshades, rub with a clean art-gum eraser.

EARTHWISE

Some cleaning jobs require dry cleaning, or rather absorbing Here are some basic, no-frills absorbing powders Talc and cornstarch are so dry, they can slurp up wet spots on carpets Fuller's earth (available in brown or white) is clay-like and good for removing greasy spots on cloth or carpets Sprinkle on leave for a few hours, then scrape up or vacuum the light crust that forms Baking soda absorbs odors in the air (your refrigerator, musty suitcases) or in carpets (sprinkle on, leave for an hour, then vacuum)

BEET GREENS

1 pound young beet greens, cut off 1 to 2 inches from root
½ cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon salt
butter
cream

Wash the greens in several changes of clean water Drain and place in rapidly boiling salted water Cover saucepan and cook for six to ten minutes over medium high heat Drain greens and chop fine Serve with butter and cream

Makes 2-3 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Warm, partly cloudy, showers, sunny west then rainy

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $124 Million in Extra Payments

Robert B. McSparran
President

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past five years, we returned more than $124 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $35,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

OPINION

Farmer's Hands Tied Again

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recently decided to prevent the use of ethanol blend fuels in major urban markets. The motivation for this decision must be called questionable at best.

If ethanol blends account for as little as twenty percent of this market, corn prices will average twenty-six cents per bushel higher than without the reformulated gasoline market. One researcher estimates that at least $20 billion will be lost from rural America's economy over the next dozen years if the present ruling is allowed to stand.

We realize that the EPA is not responsible to assure profitability in agriculture. However, it does seem irresponsible to sacrifice a significant market for domestically-produced, renewable fuel especially when it could help to reduce our dependence on foreign imports of oil.

Our GATT negotiators have a real problem when they try to negotiate trade channels into foreign countries. Other countries want to export into the U.S. but they don't want U.S. products, especially agricultural products, to freely come into their countries.

This may ignore the complexity of the situation, by why not just tell foreign countries to keep their oil and we will keep our food? With the technology to turn corn into fuel, we can eat and run our machines too. In addition, fuel made from farm crops is more environmentally safe.

As usual, if allowed to do so, the American farmer can help bail out the economy and provide many benefits for urban neighbors. But once again unmerited regulations have tied the farmer's hands. Who's side is EPA on, anyway?

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Follow Water Legislation

The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) is seeking legislative authority (Senate Bill 1054) to require everyone using 100,000 gallons of water a day or more to be registered and have a permit for that use.

In critical watershed areas, water users of 10,000 gallons a day or more would be required to be registered and have a permit.

With Pennsylvania's outward migration of population, the dependence on groundwater increased and the recent dry years of the 1980s and 1990s has caused increased concern on management of the commonwealth's water resources.

DER believes that registration of heavy water users is essential to the development of a good water management plan.

It is important agriculture becomes familiar with water management issues and actively participates in the development of water policy.

Policy makers need to understand the unique characteristics of crop and animal agriculture and the importance of water to agriculture. Also, the favorable environmental conditions of soils, climate, and rainfall of the commonwealth which enhance our agriculture productivity compared to other parts of the country and world must be constantly stated.

By becoming knowledgeable of water rights issues and water management systems, we will be able to develop the best water management plan for Pennsylvania.

To Understand Agriculture's Water Use

How much is 10,000 gallons per day water use? For irrigated crops, you could spray irrigate 2.4 acres of potatoes or 2.5 acres of sweet corn, or drip irrigate 9 acres of apples, 7.6 acres of peaches, or 13 acres of vegetables.

For animals, 200,000 layers, 2,500 hogs, 285 dairy cows, or 244,000 broilers drink 10,000 gallons of water per day. This does not include water used for misting systems and washing and cleaning operations.

When you start adding up all the different areas of the farm using water, many of Pennsylvania's farms are using more than 10,000 gallons per day, especially during the summer months.

To Look At Tunnel Ventilation

Tunnel ventilation is a concept that is becoming very popular in animal housing.

Tunnel ventilation makes the whole barn a wind chamber. Large fans are placed at one end of the barn and air inlets are opened at the opposite end. Air moves through the barn at about 5 to 7 miles per hour, creating a comfortable breeze from floor to ceiling and from wall to wall.

This concept is becoming very popular among dairymen with two-row tiestall barns. Also, many new broiler houses are being built with this concept.

The added cost is minimal while reducing the risk of losing birds during periods of hot weather. As with any ventilation system, it is very important the fans and inlets are properly sized.

Farm Forum

Dear Editor:

Farmers can not afford to fight nuisance suits brought on by chaotic regulations that change at the boundary of each municipality. Nor can they risk the future of agriculture on persons who do not understand the difference between good nutrient management and poor nutrient management.

That's why all farmers need to contact their legislators to seek passage of the Nutrient Management Act (H.B. 496). This would give farmers a first-line defense against nusiance suits, and one set of rules by which to operate.

Presently, local governments are passing regulations dealing with the number of animals allowed per acre, and the amount of manure that can be spread on an acre of land. Most are doing it without any knowledge, and certainly without any means to enforce the regulations in a rational fashion.

The lack of uniform regulations opens the door, not only to chaotic planning for farmers, but for total confusion because the rules could dramatically change if your farm should cross another municipality boundary. You could be faced with tougher rules, or none at all.

What this situation really provides is an opportunity for uninformed "experts" invading our farms to enforce regulations that nobody understands. And worse yet, lawsuits against alleged violators (farmers) are flourishing because the general public is confused. If they smell manure, they think the farmer is guilty of high treason and should be put out of business.

Again we need to bring order to this confusion by urging the General Assembly to pass the Nutrient Management Act.

Farmer members of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) have adopted a strong nutrient management policy calling for a statewide uniform program. They wanted to avoid 1,500 separate sets of regulations by every township in Pennsylvania. The PFA voting delegates representing more than 23,500 farm families adopted this policy three consecutive times.

Why would any farm organization call for more regulations?

DISTURBING GRACE
JUNE 21, 1992

Background Scripture:
Jonah 3 through 4.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 146:1-7.

When we consider God's love for us, we think of it as "Amazing Grace." But when we find that God wants to save even those whom we do not like or approve of, his love may become for us a disturbing grace.

I have known many Christians who take too much satisfaction from the promise of God's seperation of the sheep from the goats. In the Crime of Punishment, Dr. Karl Menninger warns us against what he calls "the love of vindictive justice." He quotes the philosopher Nietzsche, "Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is strong" and Prof. Henry Weihofen, "It is never he who is without sin who casts the first stone." In other words, much as we want grace for ourselves, we may want punishment for others.

WINNERS & LOSERS

Why is that? Might it be that the promise of God's forgiveness is not enough for us, unless we know that there will be others who will not taste it? For many, embracing Christianity may be a matter of choosing to be on the "right" side, the winning side. And, for some people, in order to be "winners," there must also be some "losers." What that amounts to is a failure to value the grace of God. If being saved by God's grace is not enough—if you need for that grace to fail to save someone else—than you demean it. I'm sure that Jonah was happy to be an Israelite, one of God's redeemed. But it wasn't enough for him: he needed also for God to condemn the enemy. To him, the best part of the mission to Nineveh was when he got to a proclaim: "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown!" (3:4). How some people love to prophesy doom-on others!

Credit Jonah with at least knowing that his heart was out of step with God's. The reason he ran away from God was because he knew God would respond to the repentance of Nineveh: "That is why I made haste to flee to Tasrhish; for I knew that thou art a gracious God and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love..." (4:2). He knew God's way and he knew his way: they were not the same.

LEAST LOVABLE

Jonah is the saddest and least lovable person in this whole story. The pagan sailors, reticent to throw Jonah overboard, look better to us than he does. Even the accursed people of Nineveh look better, for they repent of their evil while Jonah clings to his. They at least have the sense to save themselves. Instead, Jonah goes off and sulks: "Therefore now, O Lord, take my life from me, for it is better for me to die than to live" (4:3). I've never said anything quite that extreme, but perhaps I've come close to it. Not allowed to have my way, there have been times when I didn't want to play any longer. Maybe that's why I always chuckle when I read these words—there's nothing more foolish looking than he or she who sits and sulks.

But the story of Jonah is more sad than funny, for here is a man who, even when confronted by Almighty God, would rather cling to what he wants than what God wills. Note, although he has been most unlovable, God still loves him and sends him a plant to protect him from the hot sum. But, when God sends a worm to wither the plant, Jonah is back to his old plaint: "It is better for me to die than live"!

His problem is that his love and compassion are much, much too narrow. "You pity the plant, for which you did not labor, nor did you make it grow... and should I not pity Nineveh, that great city, in which there are more than one hundred and twenty thousand person...?"(4:11).

Jonah is not all that different from many of us who are more disturbed than amazed by the wideness of God's mercy.

unpredictability.

"Conventional wisdom is that we made animals that way. But the trouble with that argument is that many of these traits are almost prerequisites for domestication. These traits had to be there first.

"One striking fact about domesticated animals is that they retain into adulthood many characteristics that are traits of juvenile animals in the wild, playfulness, curiosity, submissiveness and dependence. Many of these behaviors are designed to seek attention or approval, and they are built into their genes. Domesticated animals clearly lack a fearful, aggressive and defensive behavior of their wild counterparts."

In his book, "The Covenant of the Wild: Why Animals Chose Domestication," Budiansky challenges theories that man exploits and abuses animals solely for his benefit. He argues, with evidence to support his views, that today's domestic animals chose to live with man, striking a bargain that trades a steady supply of food and shelter from humans for the benefits humans ultimately receive from them.

The book was written because of Budiansky's work as a science writer for US News on the original domestication of animals. His information came from archaeological studies as well as the scientific study of animal behavior and evolution. This information suggests that domestication was not so much a human invention as it was a natural product of evolution. Animals and people adapted to one another and gained advantage.

"Those of us who know life in the wild know that it is no bargain, Budiansky said. "But the less we know about nature the more we think an animal would rather be out there."

The remarkable relationship between animals and humans that nature has produced is something that Budiansky finds awe inspiring. "To think that with all the competition in the natural world, all the suffering, this (domestic) relationship is an exception to the rule," Budiansky said. "This example of cooperation that nature has crafted gives me a sense of something more profound than any philosophizing about animal rights.

After he grew up in the suburbs of Boston and graduated from Yale, Budiansky said he always thought that farmers were and needed to be tough, and calloused, maybe even brutal, to survive. But after raising sheep as an avocation, he became involved with all the lambing and other problems associated with animal husbandry. And he found from his experience as an "imposter farmer" that he became emotionally involved with the animals.

"From experience, I found that real farmers also care about these things just as much," Budiansky said. "And the way they deal with these experiences is to have a sense that they are part of something larger than themselves. They understand something about the natural world that many have lost today".

"It's within this context that farmers can truly separate an economic interest in animals from their welfare. That's why farmers can have an economic interest in their animals and also have their welfare at heart. They have something within that is deeper than what their job is," Budiansky said.

What better picture of a successful dairy promotion than mother and children all drinking milk and observing the cows? Also this mother didn't walk away without educational literature. It's tucked under her arm.

All eyes on the corner of Penn Square in Lancaster are on Sarah Johnson's milk pint juggling skills. Johnson is Berks County's alternate dairy princess and has demonstrated her ability to attract attention to herself and the product — milk.

Dairy Day On The Square

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Doing a dairy promotion in the middle of the most dairy cattle intensive county in the nation may seem to be a waste of money. After all, dairy producers and processors should already know the value of dairy products.

However, Lancaster City turned out to be one of the best places for a dairy promotion last week as hundreds of Friday afternoon city-goers, tourists and residents stopped along Penn Square to receive a free sample of dairy products, see a cow its calf and receive brochures and other literature on the benefits of milk and milk-derived foods.

In addition to officials of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, a number of dairy princesses gave away hundreds of pints of milk, ice cream, yogurt, and a new combination fruit juice and yogurt dairy beverage that is just breaking into area supermarkets.

Set up on opposite corners of the square, which is the intersection of King and Queen streets, the 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. program was benefitted also by live music provided as part of a city cultural program, which pays for noontime music to be played at the area which attracts a large number of people for lunch and to shop in the square's markets.

Brian Ross, PDPP manager, said that reaction from disc jockeys at five radio stations that he and Dupuis visited earlier in the day was favorable.

"It was great," Ross said, "they tasted the drink right there and talked about it on the air. Their response was very positive."

As far as the downtown Lancaster location for the promotion, "You can't pick a better place to have a promotion," Ross said.

"We brought the dairy industry to the city to let people who probably never see a dairy cow up close have the opportunity. We want them to know milk comes from cows, not the store," Dupuis said.

The cow and heifer calf were provided by Balmer Bros., of Manheim, while event co-sponsors included Green's, Kreider Dairy Farms, PenSupreme, Turkey Hill Dairy Inc., and Wengert's Dairy.

The program was part of the statewide promotion of June Dairy Month and similar activities were held around the state.

In July, several ice cream promotions are scheduled.

On July 4, in Nottngnham Park, in Chester County, a dairy barn is to be opened to the public. For information, call Vera Rohrer, (717) 529-2803.

July 14 is Ice Cream Day in Lebanon County. Contact Sue Werner at (717) 865-5727.

Also on July 14, at Bland's Park in Tipton, Blair County, an Ice Cream at the Park promotion is scheduled. Call Sharon Duckworth (717) 787-6903.

July 18 is a Snitz and Knepp Festival at Endors, in Dauphin County. Call Tonya Scholl at (717) 362-8158.

July 21 is Sundaes on the Capital Steps promotion in Harrisburg from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Call Dupuis at (717) 787-6903.

July 25 is an Ice Cream Contest at the Lebanon County Fairgrounds. Call Werner.

Where Are Your Weak Links?

LAWRENCE JONES
Assistant Professor
Dairy Herd Management
Cornell University

ITHACA, N.Y. — When you work with your cows on a daily basis, it is easy to loose track of how they should be performing.

Likewise, it becomes more difficult to recognize developing trends if you look solely at herd averages.

One quick and easy method of getting a good "picture" of how your herd is performing is to use a scatter graph of sample day milk productions.

The figure below is a scatter graph of the first calf heifers in a sample herd. This is the herd that has been used throughout the Pro-Dairy Records Course.

The reference line is the average production for first calf heifers in 20,000 pounds herds in the NeDHIA system.

Each point (+) is an individual cow on the 12/26/91 test day.

Several conclusions can be drawn from this graph.

In general the first calf heifers are peaking above the reference line.

From 50 to 150 days in milk, the heifers generally produce 70-80 pounds of milk.

After 100 days in milk (Box 1) there are 3 animals which are performing poorly.

When the farm manager was asked about these animals, it was found that all three had been culled. Does this mean that the problem is gone?

No. It just means that the current problem has been covered up, but there are more cows freshening waiting to be impacted the same way.

When I summarized this herd in June the same pattern of a few cows in the 100-200 day in milk existed.

Until the problem is addressed, the trend will continue to exist.

Don't cover up problems by culling, get to the bottom of the management reason as to why they are occurring.

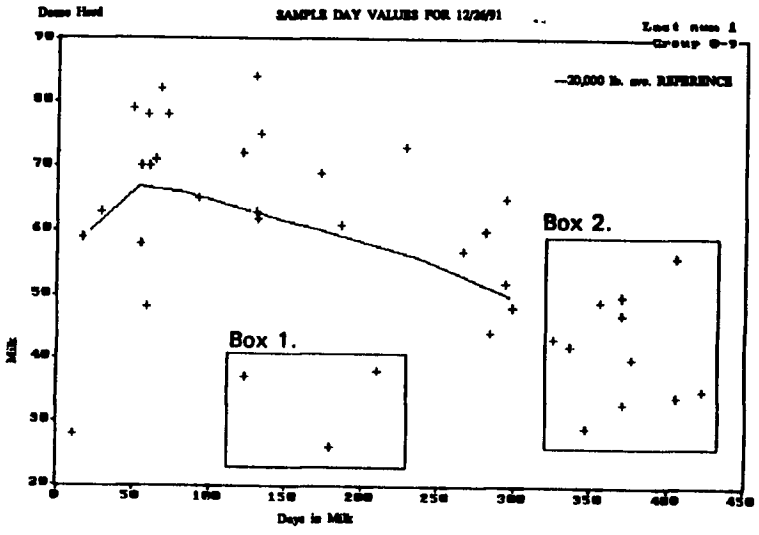
Another comment about this herd is the number of first calf heifers that are greater than 300 days in milk (Box 2).

This herd was milking 3X and experiencing some reproductive problems.

The extended calving intervals are a result of this problem.

A scatter graph, such as this one, can be developed in several manners.

If you can access the data electronically (e.g., RMS or ARIS) load it into a graphing program such as Lotus or QuatroPRo. This particular graph was generated with a program called PlotPLUS.



National And Regional News For Dairy Herd Improvement

You should frequently stand back and take a good look at your herd. Generating a scatter graph will give you a more accurate "picture" of how your animals are producing. Scatter graphs will help you to better assess the weak links in your management program.

If all else fails, you can plot the data by hand.

An interesting sidelight, the Japanese have scatter graphs as part of their DHIA system.

How Does Your Herd Compare?

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — This data is pulled from Pennsylvania DHIA's mainframe computer each week. It is a one-week summary representing approximately one-fourth of the herds on test, as they are tested monthly.

These data are valuable from a business management standpoint and can be used for comparing your operations to the averages from almost 1,400 herds across the state.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE MERLE KING FAMILY FOR THEIR COMMITMENT TO AGRICULTURE AND THE DAIRY INDUSTRY.

HAMILTON BANK BELIEVES "THE FAMILY FARM IS THE BACKBONE OF AGRICULTURE". On behalf of all dairymen, we are pleased to salute the success of MERLE AND JEANETTE KING AND SONS AND THE MER-ETTE HOLSTEINS at RD # 1, King Road, Cochranville in Chester County. The Merle King family has been dairying for 27 years which is part of over 60 years of dairying on this farm including Merle's father, Valentine King. The 150-cow MER-ETTE HOLSTEIN herd has a rolling herd average of 19,802 pounds of milk, 750 pounds of fat and 633 pounds of protein. This diversified operation consists of approximately 750 crop acres and a 120,000 pullet growing facility. A SALUTE TO DAIRYMEN. EVERY MONTH IS DAIRY MONTH WITH US.

In June a lot a people pay tribute to dairy farmers because it's National Dairy Month.

At Hamilton Bank, we feel you deserve credit a lot more often than that. Managing a successful dairy operation requires working capital all year round. So we're here to help you meet your capital requirements whenever you need us.

Dairy is the major agricultural enterprise in Pennsylvania and accounts for 31.3 percent of the total agricultural production value. The total annual volume of dairy production for our seven-county area is $503 million. This represents 33.3 percent of the yearly production for Pennsylvania. Now that's a record you can point to with pride, and we're proud to be able to help - any way, any time. At Hamilton Bank, every month is dairy month!

Farming's Future

Wilkinson Farms, a partnership with Leon and his son Charles, is managed by project leader Tom Roth. A total of 25 locations comprise more than 4,500 leased acres, with about 350 head of registered and grade Holsteins. The farm also raises about 300 head of young stock.

Some of the highest producing cows are milked three times a day. On DHIA, the entire herd averages about 19,500 lbs, an increasing of about 3,000 pounds in the last two years.

In total, the farm manages about 2,000 acres of corn, 1,600 acres of soybeans, 500 acres of alfalfa, and 500 acres of hay (some used for about 200 heifers and some for the cash market, notably to supply compost for the county's burgeoning mushroom industry).

His two sons, Ed and Dan, manage about 300 acres near Gettysburg, said Wilkinson, and maintain about 200 dairy cattle. They also make hay for the mushroom industry. The youngest son, Lewis, rents about 1,000 acres and custom farms for six other farmers. The third son, Tom, farms 800 acres in Virginia.

Wilkinson honored

Wilkinson, who was recently honored for his role as a leading county dairy farmer and as reappointed member of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) at the Chester-Delaware Farmers banquet.

He is increasingly worried about the hardships farmers are facing. In his speech at the recent Wayne County Dairy Day, "Let's Not Have Tunnel Vision," Wilkinson criticizes farmers who fail to look ahead and plan a future for generations to come.

"When I started farming with 30 registered Guernseys and a few pieces of horse equipment, I thought things were tough," he said. "But when I bought my first tractor in the 1940s, I sold four springing Guernsey heifers for $1,200 and paid cash for the tractor."

At the time, Wilkinson said he received 6 cents a quart for milk and the cows averaged about 25-30 pounds each. "That wasn't much, but I got all they had," he said.

Bankers tight

These were the days when farmland could be purchased at $100 per acre, "and I can say the bankers were tight with their lending practices even then," he said.

Too many farmers are insensitive to a changing world and changing market, according to Wilkinson. They don't plan for what consumers will demand. And they don't adjust their operations to meet a changing world.

Little by little, according to Wilkinson, he has refocused his farming operations according to market demand. He has made genetic upgrades to improve milking ability at his farm. He is slowly adjusting, as are many dairy farmers, to the change from butterfat to milk solids, but it will take time.

"We used to get 16 cents a point for butterfat, and next month it will be 7.8 cents," he said.

Doesn't work

Wilkinson said that people who create regulations think changes can be made overnight, which is wrong. "Most people in government regulation think you can turn the dial and make a cow give high solids," he said. "It just doesn't work. You can feed for butterfat, but you can't feed for solids. It will take 2-3 generations of extensive breeding to get your herd turned around."

Wilkinson said these are only some of the problems he faces as PMMB member. "I have to keep telling them over and over again that's not the way a farmer can run his business. And it's awfully hard for a farmer to go to the bank and borrow money when he can't guarantee the banker what his income will be or what the weather will be. You can plan, but it doesn't always turn out. You have to be very diversified."

As a result, Wilkinson (who has been farming since he worked on his father's farm), has taken on new types of business, including four housing projects on his farmland managed by son Charles. The sites make the best use of the available land and don't take away from farmland.

Many of the houses, with prices ranging from $200,000-$900,000, are built on hilly, untillable land.

Cherishes loyalty

Wilkinson cherishes the loyalty of his housing project managers. If they stay with the business 10 years or more, the business "chips in" — awarding them a fine house, according to Wilkinson, simply for the cost of materials.

But farming remains important to Wilkinson. About 14 years ago, a 50-head Guernsey herd was combined with about 100 head of Holsteins and milk was sold from a store, often about 600 gallons a day. Wilkinson said they "didn't bottle quarts or pints or cream. We just sold gallons of whole milk. People stood in line, they'd come 10-15 miles to get milk there because they never tasted a product so good."

Wilkinson laments the bad publicity milk has received in recent years, especially when it's been a proven, solid performer in a healthy, balanced diet.

And schools aren't helping to improve that image, either, according to Wilkinson, with the lowfat milk products. The kids won't drink it, "because milk loses its taste once you don't add solids. It loses its good flavor."

Bad publicity

"I've always been in favor of keeping a good product before the public, and I think it's too bad we've gotten a lot of bad publicity about milkfat," he said. "If you exercise, have a good diet, and drink 2 percent to 3.5 percent milk, it's not going to be damaging. In fact, a lot of studies show that it really helps your health."

Wilkinson continues to look for new ways to market his farm and farm products. In 1978, they installed an 8-unit milking carosel. Two employees milk cows three times daily on an 18-hour schedule. They continue to make compost hay for growing mushrooms, the county's number one industry.

With daughter-in-law Betsy, Wilkinson helps stage farm tours with various schools from Maryland, Delaware, and Pennsylvania.

"I think it's important for the kids to see the farm," said Betsy. "A lot of kids don't know the difference between hay and straw. City kids really have not seen it."

Prepare generations

For Wilkinson, it was just as important to involve the family early and prepare the generations to come.

When his children were graduated from high school, Wilkinson said, "They were already involved in the business. They already were a partner.

"That's why I have been so (outspoken) to people at meetings, to make them aware that they should work something out with the next generation before they live to be 75 or 80, and make it too late."

USDA Seats NDB Members

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Three new board members joined the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board at a ceremony May 19.

Jo Ann Smith, assistant secretary for USDA's Marketing and Inspection Services, seated the new members and awarded certificates of recognition to re-appointed and retiring members. The three year terms began May 1.

Dairy farmers joining the ranks as National Dairy Board members include Myron D. Schmidt, Newton, Kan.; Maynard J. Lang, Brooklyn, Iowa; and Harold Levi Lenhart Sr., Thurmont, Md.

The following nine dairy farmers were re-appointed to serve a second consecutive term: Alvin J. Sherman, Coupeville, Wash.; Robert W. Giacomini, Point Reyes, Calif.; Mary B. Parente, Ontario, Calif.; Ronald Quinn, Tulare, Calif.; Sylvia J. Hemauer, Plymouth, Wis.; John A. Malcheski, Pulaski, Wis.; Elwood C. Kirkpatrick, Kinde, Mich.; Todd Arant, Bowman, S.C.; and Patricia Kay Zeosky, Turin, N.Y.

Any active dairy farmer may submit an application to be considered for a board seat. In the application, he/she must promise to devote 25 days a year to NDB activities.

The National Dairy Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers representing the 48 contiguous states, develops and administers a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education to strengthen the dairy industry's position in the marketplace. This effort is financed by America's dairy farmers.

tillage of the farm's hillside acreage.

With their sloping land and a keen awareness of the rapidity with which previous topsoils can wash away, the Innerst family has always been conservation-minded. Enhancing their environmental awareness is the proximity of the east branch of the Codorus Creek, one of York County's premier trout streams.

The east branch cuts a meandering path through the middle of Innerst's dairy herd pasture, its waters flowing barely 100 yards from the freestall barn. Upstream just a few miles are the stream's origins in the Spring Valley County Park. And directly downstream is the hatchery and fishing area owned by the York County Chapter of the Isaac Walton League.

On opening day of trout season, with this stretch of water stocked just days before, fishermen almost outnumber cows in the scenic farm valley. A heavily-used rural road runs through the farm, parallel to the stream, splitting the farmstead from the pasture meadow and allowing handy access to eager fishermen.

The combination of steeply-sloping farmland, manure from the milking herd, and public awareness and use of this heavily-fished, highly-visible waterway could equate to a potential water quality disaster for the Innerst dairy operation.

Instead, Dun-Val Farms has been named the York County Clean Water Farm award winner for 1992 by the York County Conservation District.

The award is a tribute to the Innerst family's environmental concerns and ongoing efforts toward soil conservation, nutrient management, and stewardship of water resources.

George, Orpha and their three sons Dean, Mark, and Jim operate the Innerst farm, with 319 acres of crops, 120-head milking string, and 110-replacement heifer herd.

And, while they take pride in their carefully maintained farm, George and Orpha take even more pride in their family and three sons who have chosen to remain involved in dairy business. All three sons began helping with farm chores as youngsters and pursued vocational agriculture through the Red Lion High School FFA program. The Innersts' daughter, Deb, though no longer directly involved with the farm operation, still lives nearby.

"Make sure you give the boys credit," insists the father, whose sons have chosen to continue farming as a family. "They make a lot of the decisions."

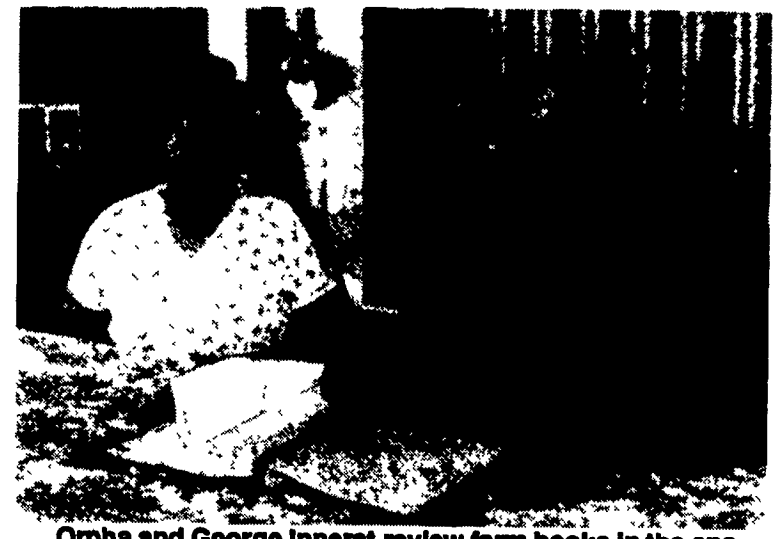
"I thought they'd retire me, but that hasn't happened," he said with a chuckle. Actually, George has been milking for some 50 years since his boyhood and says he always enjoyed the chore. He also handles all the "bookwork."

Dean, the oldest, "keeps things going," according to the family. After eight years of working away, Dean chose to rebuilt to full-time farming several years ago. He helps with both barn chores and fieldwork and handles the decisions on crop inputs such as seed and fertilizer.

Second son, Mark, also is employed full time at Dun-Val, helping regularly with milking chores and operating equipment. Mark also takes care of the crop spraying program.

The youngest Innerst son, Jim, is in charge of the breeding program and sire selection. He is a full-time employee of the Westinghouse incinerator/electrical-generation facility in York, helping on the family farm part time.

Like many dairy farm women, Orpha feeds the calves — and the family, sometimes hauling hot meals to the field on busy days. When the children were younger, she helped with milking by washing and prepping cows.



Orpha and George Innerst review farm books in the spacious kitchen of their fieldstone farm house, built in 1845.

George Innerst hoses down the milking stalls during morning cleanup. Wastes are pumped in liquid form to storage in a Slurrystore unit.

The clean water recognition of the Innerst family farm by the conservation district did not just happen. It is the result of several years of planning and implementing programs in conjunction with soil conservation agencies.

All acreage is including in conservation plans aimed at reducing soil erosion and improving fertility, as well as preventing groundwater contamination from nutrient or spray materials. Contour strips in alternating crops help slow the flow of surface water on the sloping acreage.

Manure management from the dairy herd is handled in liquid form, via a manure storage system constructed in 1987. The storage unit allows for spreading waste nutrients at the maximum time for crop incorporation. It also eliminates the need for daily manure hauling, a benefit the Innersts especially appreciate.

One conservation practice easily visible to the public is a result of the Innersts' cooperation with the Adopt-A-Stream program, a joint effort carried out with community and conservation group's assistance.

Along a section of the East Branch's that passes through the Dun-Val pasture meadow, a rip-rap of large rocks has been placed along the stream's banks. The rock barrier preserves the banks

(Turn to Page A27)

The Innerst dairy herd must cross a busy rural highway to access the pasture meadow. All hands available turn out at this critical period of the day to watch for drivers not expecting a four-footed pedestrian parade.

Adopt-A-Stream efforts are improving the waterway through the Innerst farm for both cows and fishermen. The Innersts are pleased with the erosion-control measures installed on their pasture section of the heavily-fished Codorus Creek east branch.

DER Holds Hearing

but the problem is, how do you implement the book? They admittedly doen't have the manpower to go out and monitor the spread of sewage sludge or anything else."

The repermitting is being sought by Richard Lenci, owner of Ridgecrest Farm, whose mailing address is Womelsdorf. He currently has permits to apply human sewage sludge on 40 acres of his farm and 356 acres on a nearby farm owned by Melvin Gelsinger.

Neither Gelsinger, nor Lenci have telephone numbers listed, and could not be reached for comment.

The audience sat in rows of folding chairs, while four representatives of DER sat behind a long table. Off to the side, a stenographer recorded the meeting.

The sewage sludge operation on the two farms has been cited several times during the past four years, mainly related to odor problems, but also to inappropriate application procedures, according to Mike Maioli, waste operations supervisor out of the DER Reading District Office.

Along with Maoili at the table, representing DER were Don Korzeniewski, a facility specialist, Joe Subzda, DER waste eningeer, and Alica Harris, a DER community and environmental relations employee.

According to Subzda, as part of a regular repermitting process, DER sends notices of the reapplication to the local municipal officials and to county officials. As part of the notice, those local government officials may request meetings of hearings.

Robert Manbeck, township administrator, made that request and set up the meeting.

Manbeck, a farmer also, started off the meeting addressing DER and the crowd about his concerns with the current operation.

He said he is concerned that the Gelsinger Farm does not have a conservation plan filed with the local USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), a requirement by DER for a sewage sludge permit.

Also Manbeck said several people have called him and reported having bad wells which he said the community suspects may be caused by the sludge spreading.

Other concerns included the lack of direct and regular inspections by DER.

And the odor.

According to neighbor reports, the sludge hauling has been occuring daily, and at night, without a 24-hour break between loads in many cases.

The husband of one family said he lives downwind and in a valley where air movement frequently stagnates. He said his family is regularly assaulted by the smell and can't escape, except to leave their home.

The sludge comes from the Philadelphia area and is hauled to Berks County for application.

The choices for most sewage treatment plant operators is to incinerate the sludge or find a farm where it can be spread. Spreading it on a farm is much cheaper than burning it.

In the Philadelphia region, farmland is at a premium, if available at all.

The type of waste dumping at the two farms is classified by DER as Agricultural Utilization. According to Subzda, the agricultural utilization is the most restrictive for heavy metals and other contaminates. It also generally receives the least amount of sludge.

By regulation, the amount of sludge put on the land is not to exceed the amount that crops are able to use. The crops are then to be removed from the site.

As an example, Subzda said it wouldn't be unusual for three tons of sludge, on a dry-weight basis, to be dumped on an acre of suitable farmland per year, under the ag utilization permit.

He said that the weight of the soil on an acre of land, down to a depth of 6 to 7 inches, is about 2 million tons. Compared to that, three tons of sludge per year is a light load, he said.

However, during a telephone conversation on Thursday, Subzda said his use of three tons per acre should not be taken to mean that this is the rate of application at the two farms.

Subzda said that while he considered three tons per acre to be light load, other factors and limits are taken into account, not just the bulk.

However, under the DER permitting system, those being monitored submit their own test results, soil samples and yearly dumping records.

Maioli said that approximately 15 inspectors (he wasn't sure about the specific number of inspectors) cover the 15-county Central Region area. Those inspectors are to monitor all the sludge waste spreading currently permitted. There are more than 400 sites for agricultural utilization alone.

It would be difficult for a site to be inspected more than once a year, Maioli said.

In effect, DER depends on the sludge spreading operations to inform on themselves. There is no independent or unbiased testing performed on the sludge or the soils, or keeping track of how much is being dumped.

On Thursday Subzda said he could understand the complaints about the inspection systems.

The history of the two farms were initially permitted for the sludge dumping activity in 1987; the Ridgecrest Farm in March, Gelsinger farm in September.

The permitting was done by DER's Southeast Regional office, which covers the Philadelphia/Norristown area which generates the sludge. The person who oversaw the permitting no longer works for DER.

Because of some later legislation, those permits are only good for five years. Those areas must apply for repermitting. The two farms current permits expire in April 1993. If they are repermitted, the new permits would be valid for 10 years, or until the ground levels of heavy metals reached maximum allowable levels.

Subzda said, for example, 75 pounds of copper per acre is one such limit.

Maioli worked for the Southeast Region when the permits were originally granted, but was not involved with those farms.

Susbequent promotion to supervisor in the Central Region and the restructuring of districts, left Maioli in charge of Berks County and the two farms.

According to Maioli, "I got some calls in 1988 and investigated them."

By telephone Thursday, Maioli first said he couldn't answer specific questions because he didn't have the information in front of him.

After requests for more specifics, he eventually pulled the files and reviewed the violations, they included: March 1988 — spreading on fields frozen or during periods of rain; April 1988 — storing sludge onsite without prior approval and sewage on site was not properly stabilized (treated to a pH of 12 with lime); March 1990 — failure to incorporate sludge within 24 hours.

"We had meetings and correspondence with them. We had come from erosion, and helps carve deeper channels for trout by keeping the flow confined within the narrow streambed. A special crossing installed in the stream allows the cattle to pasture on the creek's far side without disturbing the banks.

Local Boy Scouts helped place some of the barrier rocks, donated by the County Line Quarry. Bob Kinsley Construction donated equipment use, and various agencies helped design and implement the stream erosion control measures.

"We'll probably add another couple hundred yards to it this year," George said of the joint efforts toward the stream's preservation and improvement.

Another addition planned is the construction of another housing facility incorporating additional freestalls and updated feeding systems for total mixed rations.

It's just another of the many steps of progress that have kept Dun-Val successful through a third generation of father-son dairy farmers and to prepare and preserve for a possible fourth generation of Innerst children who might want to someday farm the Dun-Val slopes.

FARM MANAGEMENT

AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

Russ Powell
Bucks Co.
Extension Agent
Business Management

On July 26, 1992 the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) will take effect for employers with 25 or more employees and on July 26, 1994 for employers with 15 or more employees.

As with other recently enacted laws, there are no exemptions for agriculture or any other industry and there are substantial penalties for noncompliance. All sections of the law are designed to prevent discrimination against disabled persons.

The ADA defines "disability" as (1) a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits a person in some major life activity such as walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, working, and caring for oneself; (2) a person with a record of such physical or mental impairment; (3) a person regarded as having such an impairment; (4) a person with AIDS. The ADA does not cover a person using illegal drugs or one that poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others.

The two sections of the law most likely to affect your business are the employment and public access provisions that are outlined below.

Employment Provisions

Employment provisions of the law are based entirely on the number of employees and cover accessibility requirements to accommodate disabled employees. The ADA prohibits discriminating against a person because of his or her disability when that person is "qualified" to perform the job.

A disabled person is considered "qualified" if they can perform the essential functions of the job with or without "reasonable accommodations." Employers may only require medical examinations of perspective employees if they are related to job requirements, and only after an offer of employment has been made.

Inquiries about possible disabilities are prohibited. An offer of employment may be conditional subject to a physical examination prior to the start of work, if (1) all employees are subject to the same examinations and (2)the information remains confidential and is maintained in medical files separate from other personnel records.

Public Access Provisions

Public access provisions require that all businesses open to the public must be accessible to everyone, including the disabled. Compliance dates for public access depend on a combination of the number of employees and gross sales.

Businesses with more than 25 employees, and those with 11-25 employees and gross sales of $500,000-$1,000,000, must comply by July 26, 1992. Businesses with less than 10 employees and gross sales less than $500,000 must comply by January 26, 1993. Public access provisions apply to new construction when a permit or permit extension is issued by any government official after January 26, 1992 or the first certificate of occupancy is issued after January 23, 1993.

The provisions require that all persons with disabilities must be able to approach, enter, and exit all public areas of a business. Work areas not open to the general public must only be accessible to employees.

Existing buildings must also be accessible to disabled persons through "reasonable accommodations" that would not cause "undue hardship." The definition of "undue hardship" is left up to the business owner. However, beware that you may be required to prove that the accommodations would cause "undue hardship."

There are alternatives to extensive remodeling if it would result in "undue hardship" such as installing a bell that would allow disabled customers to be serviced at the door. In addition, you do not have to provide access for the disabled if that area is not open to the general public.

It is important to remember that mental impairments may also be considered a disability, so flexible scheduling or additional training may be required in addition to structural alterations.

What Is "Reasonable Accommodation"?

A business must make "reasonable accommodations" for persons with disabilities, including remodeling structures, job restructuring, modifying work schedules and training materials, and other measures that may be necessary.

An accommodation is not required if the business owner can prove that it would cause an "undue hardship" based on significant difficulty or expense based on factors such as the size, type, and financial resources of the facility where the accommodation would be made.

Additional Information

The Small Business Research and Education Council has a hotline to provide general and specific information about ADA compliance, information about effective dates for ADA enforcement, employer tax credits that may be available, and approaches to making your business more accessible. The number is (800) 947-4646 and is available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

If you have questions or would like additional information, contact Russ Powell at the Bucks County extension office, (215) 345-3283.

to resolution with each one."

Maioli said there are approximately 43 farms in Berks County permitted for such ag utlitization.

There are two other types of sludge application which DER permits — land reclamation and land disposal. There are no such permits approved in Berks County Maioli said.

Also, there have been no registered complaints about the oeprations at the two farms this year, Maioli said.

The surprise to Duncan and others at the meeting was that DER is apparently letting the "fox guard the hen house."

"Ag utilization (regulations) specify that you can not put on more (sludge nutrients) than the crops can utlilize in a year. What's to monitor what going on there?

"They are dumping 365 days a year. There's no way those crops can take it up. I feel they are very definitely overloading the fields with nutrients.

"My feeling is that these fields are being turned into a dumping ground, rather than being used for agricultural utilization.

"If I went out and took my manure and spread it out on my fields, over and over and over, it would take DER about three minutes to blame me for every pollution problem that exists."

No farmer in his right mind wants the interference of more regulations. But farmers, when regulations are forthcoming want them to be fair and uniform. They don't want to be forced into hiring an attorney in order to plant a field of corn that happens to straddle a township boundary. That would be the situation without a statewide, uniform set of rules.

Farmers want input into the regulations and operation of the program. The proposed legislation was written with farmer input, and it is structured so that farmers will have major input into the operation of the program.

The proposed legislation would establish a statewide nutrient management program in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania State Conservation Commission would be the agency responsible for this program. It would develop and regulate the standards for farms for the state nutrient management program.

The Commission is technically in the administrative structure of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) and the DER Secretary serves as the Commission chairman. DER does not have the legal authority to control the Commission's activities. Six of the Commission's nine voting members have a strong interest in agriculture, including the PA Secretary of Agriculture, dean of the College of Agriculture, Penn State and four farmers.

A nine-member Nutrient Management Advisory Board would be created by the proposed legislation to assist the Commission in developing reasonable standards for the nutrient management program. The Commission could not adopt any proposed nutrient management regulation without giving the Advisory Board the opportunity to review and comment. Five of the nine members to serve on the Advisory Board would have a definite interest in agriculture, including two farmers and a representative from each of the poultry, livestock and fertilizer industries.

Opponents of the proposed legislation want this operation moved to the PA Department of Agriculture (PDA), which would mean a lot of duplicated efforts on the part of DER and PDA. DER is responsible for enforcement of the Clean Streams Act and other laws dealing with water quality. So we would have two government agencies with at least two sets of rules by which we must farm. That's not a good solution.

Most ingredients and practices necessary for a nutrient management plan are now in place for most farmers. Farmers would need soil tests; knowledge of animal manure nutrient content; understanding of nutrient usage of growing crops, and application rates of nutrients to be applied. This information is already available to farmers through Penn State and other institutions.

Soil testing will give the necessary information for nutrient application.

Technical assistance would come from the PDA because it would be responsible for training and certifying nutrient management specialists.

There are those that say that we do not need such legislation, and there are those that say that this is not the right bill. But, I believe farmers truly know that nutrient management legislation is already here, coming from local governments. We cannot use excuses to bury this bill. It has had lengthy and intensive farmer input.

There will never be a perfect bill passed through the Pennsylvania General Assembly, and the nutrient management bill is certainly not perfect. PFA is seeking key amendments now and will continue to monitor and seek changes after implementation to assure that the law meets expectations. Agriculture must be a part of any attempt to regulate nutrient management. If we do not control our own destiny, others will control it for us.

Curtis Kratz,
PFA, NER Committee Chairman

Milk Fights Brittle Bone

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Both men and women need to be aware of the crippling bone disease, osteoporosis.

Women are generally affected more by the disease, but the reduction of bone calcium has also been known to affect men.

To prevent this disease, adequate calcium intake must be maintained throughout a lifetime. Recommended daily intake for adults is 800 mg of calcium per day.

Many experts suggest that women should increase these levels to at least 1,000 mg per day.

For comparison, a one cup serving of skim milk contains 302 mg of calcium, while one cup of low-fat yogurt contains 389 mg of calcium. Consult food labels to be sure that you are getting the calcium that your body needs!

Sec. Wolff Visits Mercer Countains

CAROL SMITH - Mercer County Correspondent

Gov. Casey and his cabinet spent two days visiting Mercer County as part of the "Capital for a Day" visit. This made it possible for the Governor and all of his cabinet to meet, talk, listen and respond to the concerns of the people of Mercer County.

Boyd Wolff, secretary of Agriculture met with approximately 50 people for a luncheon at the Mercer County Extension Office with plans to discuss farmland preservation, the Animal Health Commission, marketing and promotion efforts and other programs and concerns of the department.

Several similar meetings have been held in other areas of Pennsylvania.

"These have been all very interesting meetings and I appreciate the opportunity of being out of Harrisburg and back into the real world," Wolff said.

He told of his busy schedule. While in Mercer County for a visit, he toured the cheese plant, which produces one quarter million pounds of cheese a year, Ogelvee Greenhouse, a Jersey farm, a beef farm and the Angermeier Farm.

"Being secretary of Agriculture is a lot like running a farm, except for the fact that if you are farming you are the boss and you make your own decisions. That's not true in Harrisburg. There you are part of a bigger team and my boss is the governor," Wolff said. According to Wolff, in Harrisburg much time is spent on budget and personnel issues. "The biggest issue of the department is consumer protection. Our people are responsible for safety of food, accurate scales and measuring devices, the growing of fruits, animal industry, food processing and more."

The farmland preservation program now has a total of 158 farms participating in the easement including the Angermeier Farm of Mercer County.

The department has spent just under $25 million this year on the program which is the maximum allowed per year.

In addition, the department is very active in promoting Pennsylvania agriculture products, Wolff said. A couple of years ago the Department of Agriculture, through a consultant, developed a slogan, "Pennsylvania Agriculture... from our Home to Yours."

This is being used by more than 100 different companies, ranging from super market chains to individual farm markets.

Mifflin Farms On Conservation Tour

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

MIFFLIN COUNTY — Twenty people, clad in raingear, gathered, last week to tour five Mifflin County farms to view conservation practices under the Chesapeake Bay Program.

When the Mifflin County Conservation District began conducting farm tours several years ago, the purpose was to show farmers the conservation options available under the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Although the purpose has remained the same, the tour has become a good public relations event for the Conservation District. Mifflin and Juniata County Commissioners were among those who saw, firsthand, the ways farmers are helping to prevent pollution due to soil erosion.

Most farmers know about the "big ticket" items like manure pits, but, according to Harriet Rishel, District Manager for the Mifflin County Conservation District, there is a long list of Best Management Practices available to farmers under the Chesapeake Bay Program, including stream fencing and stream crossing. "If a cow tramps down the stream bank, through the stream, and up the stream bank, that's pollution," Rishel explains.

Another Best Management Practice is roof water management. "Instead of the water running off the roof of the barn or sheds, it is all collected by spouting and run into an underground pit or in some cases, it is taken into the manure storage pit itself because water has to be put in many cases to make the manure liquid enough to handle in the spreader," Rishel adds.

And if strip cropping or contour farming do not prevent a lot of the erosion, Rishel says there are other options. "Putting underground drainage tiles or putting in catch basins at the base of some waterways help provide a temporary storage for the water that runs off some of these fields, so it has a chance to sink down in and leave the top soil and fertilizers and nutrients behind."

And leaving the nutrients behind is an important issue in a county that is home to several waterways that eventually feed the Chesapeake Bay.

The conservation tour bus visited the farms of John L. King and Steven N. Peachey in Big Valley where Kish Creek meanders through countless pastures.

John L. King's farm features a manure pit and stream crossings and stream fencing. His conservation practices earned him Cooperator of the Year in 1990.

At the Steven N. Peachey farm, Bill Stidfole, Mifflin and Juniata County's Soil Conservation Technician with the Soil Conservation District, explained the beginning process, procedures, and plans for a farm new to the Program. Peachey installed two waterways last year, and is now contemplating a manure pit, stream fencing and cattle crossing.

Earlier that day, tour participants visited three farms near the Juniata River. At the Eugene Ranck farm, surface inlets, tiled waterways, and diversions were highlighted as well as the plans for a manure pit.

Lee Yoder's conservation practices on the Bonson farm include a diversion, strip farming, a manure pit, stream crossings, and fencing and roof water management.

Tour participants could see most conservation practices in place on the Bill Ammon farm, including spring development, a surface inlet, sod waterways, strip cropping, a manure pit, stream crossing and fencing, and roof water management.

Johanna Plant May Close, Industry Unruffled

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — The decision of Johanna Farms Inc., to try to phase out fluid milk processing at its Flemington, N.J., plant should have little impact on dairy farmers' milk checks, according to officials for the company and other industry spokesmen.

Mike Suever, Johanna's vice president for milk procurement, said the change will not affect Johanna's fundamental relationships with its raw milk suppliers, which include both cooperatives and a number of independent producers.

"All we're doing is taking the product that we're handling at Flemington and moving it somewhere else," he said.

Johanna, the largest milk processor on the East Coast, also operates Tuscan Dairies plants in Union, N.J., and Jamaica, N.Y., the three Lehigh Valley Dairies plants in Pennsylvania and Green Spring Dairy in Baltimore.

Suever said hauling charges potentially could change for some producers whose milk supply is shifted to another plant, but the same haulers and fieldmen will continue to serve these dairymen.

Although Johanna has contracts with dozens of independent dairymen, particularly in northern New Jersey, most of the milk produced by these farmers already goes to the Tuscan plant in Union, according to industry sources. Suever said only a handful of independent producers from New Jersey still have their milk shipped to Flemington.

Officials for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, whose members reportedly supply the bulk of the raw milk to the plant, also expressed equanimity about the forthcoming change.

"We don't see any major disruptions at this point because that supply is going to be shared with other plant sites," said Atlantic spokesman Laura England.

Johanna announced June 1 that it had opened discussions with a local Teamsters unit on a proposal to end milk processing at the plant. The local represents a majority of the 200 or so workers there. Company officials said many of the affected employees will be offered positions at other locations or within other divisions of the company.

Under the proposal, the plant's other current operations, including the making of yogurt and the processing of juice, would continue, Suever said. Johanna's headquarters also would remain at the Flemington site.

The proposed move reflects continued consolidation and competitive pressures within the industry.

In a prepared statement, John Anderson, the firm's chief executive officer, said, "Declining consumption of fluid milk products coupled with population shifts out of our New Jersey and New York markets have led to excess production capacity . . . After months of analysis, we concluded that we must close a plant.

"Flemington was a prime candidate because of its poor proximity to our two largest markets, metropolitan New York and metropolitan Philadelphia, and its increasingly poor proximity to raw milk supply."

Industry observers concur with the company's analysis.

Bob Yonkers, an ag economist at Penn State University, said, "It used to be all the bottling plants were located in the city and now they're moving farther away to be closer to the milk supply." These changes also reflect population shifts from city centers to outlying areas, he added.

Yonkers, too, agreed the move would have little, if any, impact on overall producer returns within the Mid-Atlantic region. Fluid milk processing capacity will be less, he said, "But we're not using the Class I capacity that we have now."

Brubaker Is Keynote Speaker At FFA Reunion

The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, assisted by eighteen former FFA state officers, has begun an ambitious search for former state officers - their addresses, what they are doing now, and recording their remembrances as a state officer and their thoughts today about the FFA and what it meant to them to be a state officer.

This article is in part the result of those searches. It is hoped that the Lancaster Farming's readers will be stimulated to aid in this search to find all the state FFA officers elected since 1931. If you know of a former state officer, from the list at the end of this article, living in your area please either call Mary Jo Cancelmo, Foundation Executive Director (215) 648-0674 or write to the Foundation at Calder Square, P.O. Box 10493, State College, Pa. 16805.

The keystone speaker for the first annual Pennsylvania FFA State officer reunion scheduled to be held this week in State College was the honorable Harold James Brubaker. Brubaker is a former state and national FFA vice president from Pennsylvania and is now a representative in the North Carolina Legislature. The reunion was part of the FFA summer convention.

Representative Brubaker was born in Mount Joy to Paul and Verna Mae Brubaker. He received his B.S. in Agricultural Economics from Penn State University and his Masters in Economics from North Carolina State University in 1971. He has been a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives since 1977, House Minority Leader, Joint Caucus Leader, State Chairman, American Legislative Exchange Council, and a member of the National Board of Directors of the American Legislative Exchange Council.

His committee assignments in the house are chairman of the commerce subcommittee on banks and thrift institutions and vice chairman on the commerce committee. He has served on the appropriations, education and human resources committees.

Harold Brubaker

He was selected to the outstanding young men in North Carolina in 1981, outstanding 4-H alumni of North Carolina and received the distinguished service award in 1981.

In 1972, Mr. Brubaker married Geraldine Baldwin. They have two sons, Jonathan Nissley and Justin Andrew.

"I am looking forward to the reunion... not only to renew old friendships, relieve past experiences as state officers, but also to reaffirm the fundamental ideas, ideals, and beliefs that the FFA gave all of us," Brubaker stated.

"Although agriculture and agriculture education have changed drastically in terms of technology, the fact that agriculture education is the best "hands on" biology, chemistry, embryology, botany, physics and mechanical science course ever offered to public high school students cannot be denied."

"Then to add on top of that the leadership training aspect of the FFA makes a combination that is unbeatable in terms of educational rewards not only to the student himself but to the community in which he or she is being educated."

"If every school board, high school principal, and guidance counselor could just look at the roster of the Pennsylvania State officers over the course of the sixty plus years the Pennsylvania FFA has been in existence, the names would read like a who's who in the American success story."

"It has been said that the FFA has been the best kept secret of education. It's time to "let the cat out of the bag" and let the secret be known. FFA is exactly what we need in this day and age of lack of direction for our young people... education reinforced by hands on experience, leadership molded by assigned responsibilities, and competition to succeed to the best of one's ability."

Back in February when Dennis Grumbine, Glenn Wenger, and Mary Jo Cancelmo got together to first discuss an FFA state officer reunion, they had no idea the results would turn out so well.

First of all, they never dreamed that starting with no lists of state officers and no addresses, sixty years of names, addresses, updates, ect. would come pouring forth from all corners of the United States and Europe. Aided by former teachers, next door neigjhbors, school superintendents, ministers, and readers of Lancaster Farming, the results have been phenomenal.

Jill Harnish Attains Lancaster Dairy Princess Crown

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County's newly-crowned Dairy Princess Jill Harnish vows to become a dairy farmer forever.

"Maybe I'll marry a dairy farmer or maybe I won't, but either way, I'm going to be a dairy farmer," the decisive 17-year-old told the judges at the Lancaster County pageant held June 13.

Chosen from three other contestants, Jill impressed the judges with her creativity in the promotional skit presented before the audience at the Farm and Home Center.

Dressed in a business suit, Jill portrayed an advice columnist. Among the letters she read was one from a desperate, compulsive woman who chases ice cream trucks.

"Your problem is obvious," Jill said. "You aren't getting enough calcium in your diet. After outlining the need for calcium in the diet, Jill admonished, "If you don't follow my advice, you'll end up with back pains or dowagers hump from osteoporosis."

For the person who wrote complaining of depression and skin that looks like sandpaper, Jill had a solution. "There are 1,900 farms in the county. Get a job on one of them." She promised the hard work in the outdoors would soon have her a picture of glowing health.

Jill prescribed more solutions for her imaginary patients before answering the impromptu question posed by Master of Ceremonies Grover Gouker Jr. who asked, "If you had the opportunity to speak to world leaders about the United States, what would you say makes you most proud of your county?"

Jill responded that she finds it most gratifying to have freedom of religion that allows her to worship the God that she honors in the way that she chooses.

Jill, the daughter of R. Edwin and Arlene Harnish of Christiana, will be a senior in the FFA program at Solanco High School in the fall. The Harnishes farm 220 acres, milk 54 Holsteins of which Jill owns 11. Her 4-H and FFA projects include 7 sheep, 3 pigs, and 1 steer.

Heather Becker of Narvon was named alternate dairy princess. In her presentation, Heather dressed as a French chef who was attempting to fill a dinner request for a full day's supply of calcium. To do so, she considered the impractical possibility of serving 11½ pounds of carrots, 3½ pounds of spinach, or 20 oranges before deciding on a menu with a muenster burger, macaroni and cheese, and cheese cake.

Heather, the daughter of Gayle and Patricia Becker, graduated from Pequea High School and will study at Penn State University in the fall.

Two other dairy princess contestants in the pageant were Melanie Balmer of Manheim and Jesslyn Oberholtzer of Elizabethtown.

Four Dairy Darlings ranging in ages from eight to 10 years old were introduced as assistants to help the dairy princess in milk promotion at stores, farm meetings, nursing homes, and schools. The opportunity to be a dairy darling is considered a grooming process in becoming a dairy princess candidate when age requirements are met.

The four Dairy Darlings include the following: Lisa Blank, daughter of Cliff and Joyce Blank of Gap; Jill Hoover, daughter of Gordon and Carol Hoover of Gap; Elizabeth Young, daughter of Dave and Carol Young of Peach Bottom; and Rebecca Young, daughter of Matt and Linda Young of Peach Bottom.

Robyn Groff in her farewell speech thanked the audience for the honor of representing the dairy industry this past year. She also recognized the Dairy Darlings who assisted her in milk promotion. These included Sarah Bard, Laura Blank, Meagan Good, Laura Hershey, and Amber Shellenberger.

Judges for the event were Phoebe Bitler, Fleetwood; Ernest Miller, Hamburg; and Janice Garber Weaver.

Lisa Risser presented Dairy of Distinction Awards to the owners of four county farms. The program recognizes farms that present an attractive appearance to the community. Specially-designed signs denoting the honor were presented for the farmers to display at the farms' entrances.

This year's honorees include Herr-Hope Farms owned by A. Dale Herr of Kirkwood; Howcrest Holsteins, owned by Susan A. and John H. Howard of Willow Street; Pine View Dairy Farm owned by J. Larry and John B. Hess of Lancaster; and the farm of John H. Shank, Quarryville.

In other business, Julie Herr, a former dairy princess and dairy promotion chairperson for the last four years, will resign due to other responsibilities. The committee thanked her with a farewell gift.

Newly-crowned Lancaster County Dairy Princess Jill Harnish is surrounded by her sister, Jenny Bowman, and parents, R. Edwin and Arlene Harnish of Christiana.

This team is eager to start dairy promotion in Lancaster County. Dairy Princess Jill Harnish, center, will be assisted by Alternate Heather Becker, left, and dairy darlings, fro · left, Elizabeth Young, Rebecca Young, Lisa Blank, and Jill Hoover.

Julie Herr, former chairperson for the county dairy promotion committee, left, talks with Phoebe Bitler, center, and Janice Garber Weaver, judges for the pageant.

Local Teens To Attend Penn State Conference

YORK (York Co.) — Oona Horn, daughter of Ronald and Helen Horn of Dover and Randi Peck, daughter of Nancy Chavez of Etters have been chosen as delegates to attend the fourth annual Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference, June 22-24, at the University Park Campus.

"The 100 delegates will learn communication and leadership skills that will be extremely useful later in life," said Roxanne Price, extension 4-H/youth coordinator. "They will attend workshops covering interviewing, public speaking, and marketing."

Training sessions will include making a good first impression, understanding audiences, and promoting 4-H creatively with visual aids, skits, storybooks, and booths.

Teens also will learn how Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, cooperative extension, and 4-H work together to enhance the lives of youths and families. They will receive information on how to answer commonly asked questions about 4-H and how to use their new skills in their home countries.

Invited speakers at the Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference include Dr. William Asbury, Penn State vice president and honorary chairman of the Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference; Dr. Donald Evans, assistant dean for extension; and Dr. Katherine Fennelly, associate professor of health education and head of agricultural and extension education.

Brubaker Is Speaker

They had a nurse from a nursing home call and say they had a resident confined to his bed or several years who wanted them to know where he was and that he would love to hear about any FFA news.

A serviceman stationed on a base in Texas called and a retired teacher who did hours of investigation to come up with updated lists on as many as ten or twelve former state officers. Even former state presidents have tracked down their entire team, many times starting with parent's names and addresses.

"We now have with one or two exceptions, a completed list of all state officers since 1929," said Wenger. "The list has about 550 names and at least 50 percent of those addresses are updated."

A list of former state officers that have not been contacted follows. Any help in locating these people will be greatly appreciated.

Finally, A Crown For The Dairy Princess

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Oh, to be Cinderella!

For the newly crowned Lebanon County dairy princess, just two years can seem so long ago and far away. At that time, she finished last in the open class at the dairy show at the county fair. And last year she was denied an opportunity to enter the dairy princess pageant because she was under age.

But Saturday night, Angie Baker, 16-year-old daughter of Robert and Ann Baker, Lebanon, won the hearts of the judges and crowd and received the coveted crown.

As the new dairy representative for the county (which rates dairy farming as the number one industry), Angie said she was ready and proud to take on the responsibilities of the crown.

Also at the pageant, Stacy Habecker, 18, daughter of Mark and Darlene Habecker, Palmyra, was crowned alternate queen. And Janelle Zimmerman, the 6-year-old daughter of Jay Calvin and Thelma Zimmerman, was crowned the 1992 Lebanon County Lil'Miss.

Kathy Habecker, 13, daughter of Mark and Darlene Habecker, is the 1992 Lebanon County dairy maid.

During a question-and-answer session conducted by master of ceremonies Richard Kreider, Angie said she wants to improve her public speaking abilities. She said that milk promotions must start with the children. And if posed with recommending a dairy diet, she said she would emphasize the importance of drinking milk and exercising regularly.

During her skit, Angie spoke to her high-producing cow about what goes into making milk so wholesome. She said it takes six buckets of water to produce three five gallon bucks of milk every day. But milk isn't the only thing — exercise is as important to staying fit and trim.

After receiving the crown, Angie said she intends to either attend college or to work on a dairy farm. Angie works part-time at the Sher-Don Farms. She is a junior at Lancaster Mennonite High School, where she is president of the FFA. Angie is also a field hockey goalkeeper. She is an active member of Midway Church of the Brethren and is youth group president. Her father, Robert, has an agricultural nutritional business.

Promote milk

Stacy Habecker, dairy alternate, said that, as dairy princess, she would enjoy the experience to help build personality traits, including self-esteem and self-confidence. Being able to promote milk to all different age groups and emphasizing the importance of balance in the meal (which includes dairy products) would be important to her.

Last Saturday night, Angie Baker, 16-year-old daughter of Robert and Ann Baker, Lebanon, center, became Lebanon County's new dairy princess. Stacy Habecker, 18, daughter of Mark and Darlene Habecker, Palmyra, right, was crowned alternate queen. Janelle Zimmerman, the 6-year-old daughter of Jay Calvin and Thelma Zimmerman, was crowned the 1992 Lebanon County Lil'Miss at the pageant. Photo by Andy Andrews.

In her skit, Stacy spoke to her little calf Daisy about how important milk is to the body. Pennsylvania, said Stacy, has about 13,000 dairy farms and ag is the number one industry in the state (generating about $1.4 billion in income). Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in milk production.

She said that milk and milk products provide the essential calcium needed to prevent a disease called osteoporosis, which affects about 15-20 million Americans, especially women over 50 years old.

Stacy is a senior at Palmyra High School, where she is a member of the National Honor Society, Youth Alive, SADD, varsity choir, select chorus, outdoor educational counselor for seventh grade, and peer counsel. She is also a member of 4-H and teen council. Her father, Mark, is employed on a 450-acre farm with 83 Holsteins.

Dairy maid

Kathy Habecker, Stacy's sister, was honored as the 1992 Lebanon County Dairy Maid. Kathy, 13, is involved in 4-H, the Junior Holstein Club, peer helpers, and her church youth group.

New Lebanon County Lil'Miss dairy princess is Janelle Zimmerman. Her family, including parents Calvin and Thelma Zimmerman, live on a 200-acre farm and milk 160 Holsteins. Janelle's favorite farm animal, she said, is the cow, and she enjoys strawberry ice cream. She said she wants everyone to buy Real dairy products, including "My dad's cow's string cheese" and "buttermilk, chocolate milk, yogurt, butter, ice cream, and pizza."

Angie Baker, 16, right receives the coveted Lebanon County dairy princess crown from Karen Lentz, 1991 princess, at the pageant last Saturday night.

Other contestants for Lil'Misss included Charity Brubaker, 6-year-old daughter of Ron and Joy Brubaker; Audrey Hitz, 5-year-old daughter of Steve and Cindy Hitz; and Jenny Maulfair, 6-year-old daughter of Dale and Patty Maulfair.

Judges for the pageant were Ann Rohrbach, 1989-1990 Berks County dairy princess; Ruby Bollinger, former chair of the Lancaster County Dairy Promotion Committee; and Andy Stoltzfus, Berks County dairy farmer.

Karen Lentz, 1991 dairy princess, couldn't hold back the tears in her emotional fairwell to the industry that "has given me so much," she said. "I would not trade my upbringing on a farm for anything. The dairy industry has given me a future."

Karen Lentz, former Lebanon dairy princess, center, presents the Lil'Miss crown to Janelle Zimmerman, right, as Bethanie Heagy, 1991 Lil'Miss, looks on.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

You teach them. And you teach them some more.

And some days you wonder if it ever got through. Or you wonder if you forgot to include something along the way. Or, maybe even if you overdid it.

Wildlife has always been of great interest to our family. The kids have grown up with outdoor-oriented experiences such as watching deer, feeding birds and fishing. And, in recent years, we seem to be sharing our living space with increasing numbers of wildlife that move in closer and closer to us.

But - we have always "preached" the message of leaving seemingly-abandoned baby wildlife alone where mothers can retrieve it when danger passes. If you touch wildlife babies, they'll smell like people and the mother won't take them back. That's always been our theme.

Only occasionally is that rule violated — for instance to place back in a tree a just-learning-to-fly young songbird being eyed by one of our resident barn cats.

Not to mention the incident a few years ago when the youngest freed a baby groundhog from its entanglement in a piece of hay bale mesh wrapping, despite the fact that groundhogs munch their way through costly volumes of soybean plants and excavate machinery-wrenching holes all over the fields.

The only wildlife in sight as I weeded the onion row a few evenings ago were the robins, song sparrows, and doves who normally hang around the garden.

So I thought.

"Mom, would you feed my bunnies while I'm at beach?" asked the voice approaching from the back yard.

"Oh, I might be persuaded," I countered, wondering if I should bargain for a box of salt water taffy as a trade for looking after the clover-hungry appetites of soft, furry Ben and her two grown daughters.

"You'll have to watch out for Henry, too."

Henry?

"Who's Henry?" I demanded, eyeing the bulging tee-shirt pocket where his hand was reaching for something — obviously some live something.

He pulled out a baby wild rabbit.

"Where did you get that?" I fussed with an indignant mother voice.

Seems Henry had been rescued from in front of the tractor and chuck wagon when the little guy froze and refused to move from the spot. And - once he'd been picked up, mother wouldn't claim him (or maybe her).

I ran through a quick half-dozen arguments about why this wouldn't work.

"Wildlife should be left in the wild," I finally quoted.

"Yeeesssss, mootthhheerr," was the reply.

Henry went in with the domestic rabbit trio. Come morning, I was certain, I would have to bury the little fellow.

It was with reluctance that I walked to the pen to feed bunnies the next morning. As the rabbits hopped toward me, lo and behold, there sat a very much alive Henry - who made a mad dash to hide in a dark corner of the pen.

Now, I was going to have to figure out some way to get milk into this orphan. My thoughts about having inherited this chore were not too motherly.

Eventually, with a small syringe, warm milk - and tucked into a soft piece of cloth - Henry was persuaded to swallow a few drops. This continued a few more times over the day. By evening, I felt a little hope that maybe this would work, although Henry did seem a little weaker.

Then, next morning, little Henry had passed on to Clover Heaven.

I buried his small body in the middle of the hosta bed, just because I felt responsible. And delivered a heavy-duty warning the moment the wildlife rescuer set foot back on the place that it better not happen again.

Kids, leave the wildlife in the wild.

Or the wildest thing you may encounter next will be your mother.

SUN Area Dairy Princess Represents Four Counties

WATSONTOWN (Northumberland Co.) — A week-long celebration highlighting the dairy industry will be held June 22 to 27. Known as the SUN Area, the counties of Snyder, Union, Northumberland, and Montour, will hold the celebration sponsored by Boscov's at the Susquehanna Valley Mall.

Throughout the week, dairy displays are set up at the mall. On Friday, June 26 at 6 p.m., Turkey Hill will built a giant ice cream sundae that is more than 7 feet tall and uses 135 gallons of ice cream covered by chocolate, nuts, and cherries.

On Saturday, June 27, six breeds of dairy calves will be in a tent for children to pet. Between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., a dairy puppet show will be held every 30 minutes. Dee Corter and her puppeteers will delight kids of all ages.

At 7:30 p.m., three teens will compete during the dairy princess pageant for the SUN Area crown. Contestants are sisters Becky and Michelle Dugan, daughters of George and Barbara Dugan from Watsonton, and Michele Renninger, daughter of Walter and Diane Renninger from McClure.

The pageant includes a fashion show. Todd Steward of WILQ will be the master of ceremonies.

During the pageant festivities, Dairy of Distinction farms will be honored. These farms are judged to be good images for the dairy industry.

Also on June 27, the Hostein Association will hand out free samples of milk punch to mall shoppers.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

With microwaving, vegetables are not only an essential part of the meal, they're one of the best parts. Fresh, frozen or canned, microwaved vegetables retain their attractive color, fresh taste and natural texture. Since only a small amount of water is added, just enough to produce steam, you don't drain off flavor and nutrients before serving. Vegetables with a high natural moisture content will taste more like themselves than you've ever experienced before. Until you've taste microwaved corn on the cob, you'll never realize how much good corn taste you discarded with the cooking water.

Before we go into microwaving the following vegetables, let's have a MICROLESSON. Vegetables should be tightly covered. Vegetables cooked in their skins, such as potatoes, are already so tightly covered, that they should be pricked with a fork before cooking to release excess steam. Salt vegetables AFTER cooking, or put salt in the casserole with the water before adding vegetables. Salting the tops of vegetables before microwaving causes darkened, dried out spots. Vegetables tend to continue to cook after they are removed from the microwave oven, even in the time it takes to serve them.

Franklin County Holds Dairy Pageant

BETH MILLER
Franklin Co. Correspondent
Franklin County Dairy Princess

The Franklin County Dairy Princess program hit its quarter century mark when Jennifer Rosenberry was crowned as the 1992 princess on June 12 at the Lighthouse Restaurant in Chambersburg.

Rosenberry, daughter of Charles and Jewel Rosenberry of Saint Thomas and a senior at James Buchanan High School, was chosen from a field of four contestants.

The first alternate princess is Jessica Royer, a 1991 James Buchanan graduate who is the daughter of Cheryln Royer of Mercersburg.

Rosenberry captured her victory with a program that linked dairy promotion to an unusual Christmas theme.

She emerged on the stage in a nightdress with a cow on it and carrying a cow doll. The time was Christmas Eve, and Rosenberry was debating what to leave for Santa Claus to drink.

First, she poured a glass of Pepsi, but then changed her mind and went for milk - "something healthy."

Franklin County Dairy Princess Jennifer Rosenberry, right, and alternate Jessica Royer are ready to promote dairy products.

That was when the unique part of the program began. Rosenberry launched into a song, "Bossy the Incredibly Productive Milk Cow," to the tune of "Rudolf the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

She was an immediate hit with the audience.

"I entered the pageant for my great-grandmother, Evelyn Wenger," Rosenberry said. "She's always wanted me to do this."

Her English teacher gave her the idea for the presentation, she said. "I just expanded on it," Rosenberry said.

Royer's program had her posing as a disc jockey for radio station WMILK, "the best moosic on the udderside. She went through a milk fact contest and milk news.

The other contestants were Diane Stuff of Mercersburg and Carolyn Terrel of Waynesboro.

Stuff's presentation began with her dressed as an old lady who, after talking about the benefits of drinking milk, fell asleep and became a young girl doing an aerobic dance.

Terrel presented a speech on the value of drinking milk.

Rosenberry said she is looking forward to a year of promotion for the dairy industry.

She plans a career in agriculture and already is on her way toward that goal.

She is a secretary of her local FFA chapter and is a 4-H member and a member of the National Honor Society.

Rosenberry spends her time working on the Rosey Acres Farm and showing cattle. She owns 20 Holstein cows and heifers.

Heather Harrison, the county's 1991 Dairy Princess, crowned Rosenberry after telling her audience how much she had enjoyed her year as royalty.

Similar feelings were expressed by 10 other dairy princesses — including Jean (Meyers) Koontz, the princess from 1968 - who attended the program.

Savor Seafood

Seafood is a great food! It tastes delicious, and it's good for you. When you serve seafood, you can please your palate and enjoy healthy eating at the same time.

Most raw seafood species contain about 100 calorie per 3-1/2 ounces. A few low-calories favorites are cod, sole, flounder, monkfish, haddock, shrimp, clams and mussels. Add to this the fact that virtually all seafood derive around 7 to 30 percent of their calories from fat. Some seafood with particularly low fat content are shrimp, scallops, grouper, perch, flounder and monkfish.

Fish and seafood contain many of the vitamins and minerals that the body needs each day. Among them are thiamin, riboflavin, pantothenic acid, niacin, phosphorous, potassium, iron, iodine, fluoride, zinc, selenium and copper. One 3-1/2 ounce serving supplies about one-half the total protein required by the body each day.

But there is even more good news. Since there are so many different types of fish and shellfish, you can use seafood to add exciting variety to your meals. There are also many different ways to prepare seafood. You can mix and match many different fish and shellfish and cooking methods to create an unlimited number of dishes. Experiment by using different herbs, spices and other seasonings and you can give even your favorite seafood dishes an intriguing new flavor.

Guide To Cooking Seafood

The most important thing to remember when cooking seafood is not to overcook it. Overcooking leads to loss of taste and natural juices. All you need is a squeeze of lemon, a few herbs and spices, and about 10 minutes, to prepare a delicious entree of most fish and seafood species.

Cook raw shellfish, shucked or in the shell, very lightly. You can actually see when they are done.

Finfish cooks quickly, 6 to 12 minutes per inch thickness, regardless of cooking method. Monitor cooking time carefully. Measure fish at its thickest point before cooking. Check fish several minutes before end of estimated cooking time. Cook fish only until it is firm, but still juicy and has turned form translucent to opaque. Don't cook fish until it flakes. By this time it has toughened and dried out.

Fish can be cooked from the frozen state if you double the length of the cooking period. It's not a good idea to thaw fish and seafood in the microwave because some parts may start to cook. Never refreeze seafood because the quality deteriorates quickly.

Fish and seafood can be baked, broiled, steamed, poached, panfried, grilled or microwaved. Although fish can generally be interchanged within cooking methods, some kinds of fish are more suitable for certain preparation techniques than others. For instance, pan-frying is ideal for thinner fish fillets and very small whole fish. If you want to grill or broil a fillet or steak, choose a firm textured fish. It will hold together much better than a delicate textured fish.

When purchasing whole fish or fish fillets, look for firm flesh. If you press the fish with your finger and it leaves an indentation, it is not the highest quality, even though it may still be good to eat. Also look for shiny flesh. Dull flesh may mean that the fish is old.

Check to see that there is no darkening aorund the edges of the fish or brown or yellowish discoloration, especially if these areas appear dry or mushy.

Seafood and fish are very perishable and should be cooked within two days of purchase. If you cannot do this, it is best to freeze the fish or seafood immediately. To do so, rinse the fish under cold water and pat very dry with paper towels. First wrap the fish tightly in plastic wrap, squeezing all the air out, and then wrap tightly in aluminum foil and freeze. For best quality of fish frozen at home, use within two weeks.

DE-LITE-FUL CHEESE BAKE

1 package gelatine
1 cup skim milk
1 cup 1% cottage cheese
8 ounces Neufchatel cream cheese
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Blend cottage cheese, cream cheese, and sugar until creamy. Sprinkle gelatin over ¼ cup milk for 1 minute to soften. Dissolve over low heat while stirring constantly.

Add remaining milk, gelatine mixture and vanilla to cheese mixture. Blend about 30 seconds.

Pour into a graham cracker crust and chill until firm. Top with your favorite fruit. Contains about half the amount of fat and half the amount of calories of a regular cheese cake.

This cheese cake recipe was created by Jane, our daughter. She will be a senior at Eastern Mennonite College, Virginia, in the fall and has always been interested in cooking. She began showing cookies and canned fruit at the Oley Fair when she was in kindergarten. This spring, she developed the low-fat cheese cake for a nutrition class.

Jane spent her childhood on a hog and beef farm in the Oley Valley. We raise corn and soybeans as our primary crops.

This custard ice cream recipe is a favorite family recipe passed down through the generations.

My husband Tim and our three children, Brandon, 8; Bradley, 5; and Britttany, 2; and I live on a dairy farm, two miles south of McConnellsburg. Tim's been farming since he's been a very young boy (he's 29 and I'm 26) by helping his grandfather and father. Last fall, his dad died of cancer. We recently bought 75 cattle off his mother and are renting the farm from his grandfather. We are hoping someday to buy the farm. So with a lot of hard work and prayers, we are hoping to make a go at it. Tim really enjoys farming. He even has me feeding the calves and cows. I do enjoy helping him. I enjoy cooking, baking, and working outside in my flowers. We will soon be moving into the nice farmhouse. So I'm anxious to start working outside around the house. Right now, we live in a 14x70 mobile home. Believe me we could use more space. A canister set sure would look nice in my new kitchen. Cows are the theme of my new kitchen.

Thank you for your dairy recipe contest. I really enjoy the recipes.

In the recipe for Chocolate Peanut Butter Loaf that appeared in the June 13 issue, the amount listed for peanuts should have read ½ cup instead of 4 cups. We regret this error.

My dad cooked and canned food. The two things he loved to make best were jelly and Poor Man's Cookies. They really should be called Rich Man's Cookies because the ingredients aren't cheap to buy. My grandmother made them when my dad was a boy and now I'm carrying on a family tradition.

I'm married to a wonderful man, Bert Barber. He's a wonderful father to my son Marty who is a character and a half.

We are slowly building our farm. Since I wrote last year, we have two pigs who are expecting, 2 cows and a calf, 20 chickens, and 1 rooster that my son calls the Terminator.

I love reading your articles and I still collect cows, paint saw blades and do other crafts.

Hello, I am Gail Schaeffer of Schuylkill County, and I'm 19 years old. Although I do not presently live on a farm, my father runs a small farm as a part-time night hobby and job. With 78 acres of tillable land, he manages to keep the farm going and running smoothly. The farm is basically all cash crops except for the little bit of grain and straw that we save for our seven to eight pigs, which we raise for butchering season.

However, on October 16, 1993, I plan to do something I swore I was never going to do — marry a dairy farmer! Last year I finally overcame my fear of Holsteins and began milking. After a few wapps of their tails, I became familiar with them and even grew to love them. That's not to mention the fact that if I want to see my fiancee I have to like his cows and milk them.

I have tried to get familiar with all aspects of the dairy farm. I now register most of the calves and name them. But what I failed to realize is that dairy farming is a lot tougher than I had anticipated and that every day I learn something new. When the term "freshening" came up, I thought it meant that a cow's milk was good to use, thus, it was fresh. When I learned the true definition of "freshening," a cow delivering her calf and starting a new lactation, I felt even dumber when I though the term "bagging up" meant that a cow was getting fat.

Aside from the farm, I'm presently attending Allentown Business School where I'm majoring in market management. I will graduate next April and I hope to use this education in obtaining a job in the business field until farming for my future husband and myself can be our full-time career. Also, I just became a member of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association, which has become another source for more information on farming.

So until next October, I will take the liberty of milking when I feel like it and then after October I will milk when the cows feel like it. Until then, I must also learn more and try to get used to the not so nice and pretty aspects of the farming business.

¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Chocolate Chip Cookies At Their Best

1 cup butter, room temperature
½ cup shortening
1⅓ cups granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar
4 large eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, optional
½ cup rolled oats
2 packages (12-ounces each) semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 cups walnuts, coarsely chopped

In a large bowl, beat butter, shortening, and sugars on high speed until very light and fluffy, about 5 minutes. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat in vanilla and lemon juice. In another bowl, stir together flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, and oats. Gradually add to butter mixture, blending thoroughly. Stir in chocolate and walnuts.

For crisp cookies, bake 350 degrees for 16 to 18 minutes. Transfer to racks to cool.

ANSWER — Barbara Muir-Darby, Wycombe, requested recipes using mulberries. Thanks to Esther High, East Earl, for a recipe for mulberry pie, and to Eva Southard, Glen Rock, who writes that mulberries can be used the same as raspberries in puddings, pies, and other desserts. Mulberries can also be eaten raw with lemon juice or cream. Here is one of her recipes.

Mulberry Delight

12 Ladyfingers
½ cup blanched almonds
½ pound seedless white grapes
1 cup heavy cream or evaporated milk, whipped
2 tablespoons sugar
1 pint mulberries

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Place the Ladyfingers on a cookie sheet and toast in the oven for 30 minutes or until crisp. Put them and the almonds through a food chopper, using the finest knife. Mash the grapes and mix with the crumb and nut mixture. Whip the cream or evaporated milk and fold in with the sugar. Chill 1 hour or more. Arrange a few mulberries in the bottom of sherbert glasses. Spoon some of the chilled mixture over them. Top with the remaining berries.

Mulberry Pie

1 package blackberry or raspberry Jell-O
1 cup sugar
4½ cups mulberries

Mix together Jell-O and sugar and add to mulberries. Bake in a double crust pie at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce oven heat, and bake for an additional 25 minutes or until crust is lightly browned.

Nutrition Fun

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — June is National Dairy Month. Dairy foods - milk, cheese, yogurt and ice cream provide us with the important mineral, calcium, which our bodies need to build strong bones and teeth. Everyone, no matter what age, needs calcium - children under 9 need 2 to 3 cups; 9 through 12 year olds need at least three servings a day from milk group; teenagers need four servings; and adults need two.

An 1 1/2 ounce piece of cheddar cheese, 1 1/3 cups of ice cream, 1 1/2 cups of cottage cheese, 1 cup of yogurt or one cup of pudding gives you the same amount of calcium as one cup of whole milk.

To help you get more calcium in your diet:

- Switch from hamburgers to cheeseburgers
- Order a milk shake or milk instead of soda
- Have yogurt or ice cream for a snack instead of candy or chips
- Eat more foods with cheese in it such as pizza, lasagna, tacos, nachos, and macaroni and cheese
- Always have milk with your snacks

For a refreshing snack this summer make one of the following recipes:

Orange Fun Sickles

6 ounces orange juice concentrate
6 ounce can water
1 cup plain lowfat yogurt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend together. Pour mixture in an ice cub tray. Place half of a drinking straw into each cube. Freeze overnight.

Strawberry Float

1 (10 ounce) package strawberries
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon almond extract

Combine strawberries, milk and ice cream in a bowl or blender. Beat until smooth. Add almond extrac and beat again. Serve in a glass.

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

MANSFIELD (Tioga Co.) — The Dairy Industry sparkled with talent and beauty Monday, June 8, as three young ladies competed for the title of Tioga County Dairy Princess.

The judges did not have an easy time of choosing a winner, but eventually agreed 1991 Princess Candice Kennedy could pass her crown on to Suzanne Jackson of Mainesburg.

Jackson, 17, is the daughter of Robert Edward Jackson and Deborah Faulkner, both of Mainsburg. After graduating from Mansfield High School in 1993, she plans to become a medical secretary. Her school activities are volleyball and cheerleading. Her hobbies are collecting race cards, volleyball, horseback riding, working with animals, ice skating, roller skating, swimming, showing cows, stock car racing and 4-H. She owns four dairy animals on her family's farm, Eastmont Farms, a 326-acre farm with 75 Jersey, 46 of which are milked.

In additon to apperances on behalf of the American Dairy Association, this perky young lady uses her spare time to work with two of her Jersey calves which she plans to show at the Tioga County Fair. She will also remain working at Arby's in Mansfield when her schedule allows.

Assisting Jackson with her duties locally will be First Alternate Becky Jo Brewer, 18-year-old daughter of Richard and Patricia Brewer of Millerton. Second Alternate Stacey Graves, 18-year-old daughter of Dennis and Christine Graves of Little Marsh.

Brewer, a student at Mansfield Jr.-Sr. High School, plans to attend Mansfield University to become a respiratory therapist. She is in FFA, Future Business Leaders of America, Mansfield Youth Education Association, varsity volleyball and is a wrestling cheerleader. She is Miss Maple Sweetheart for the Class of '93, and Miss Mansfield Court. Her hobbies are horseback riding, showing cows, volleyball, swimming, and public speaking. Brewer owns 10 diary animals on her family's farm, Brewersview, and they have a mixed herd of 50 animals, with 48 milkers.

Graves is a 1992 graduate of Cowanesque Valley High School with plans to attend Penn State at the Berks Campus to major in dairy and animal science. She was active in FFA, Student Council, Letterman's Club, Parliamentary Procedure, Public Speaking, volleyball, track, and Aerobics Club. She was the Alternate Fall Queen, State Dairy Foods winner and vice president of the Tioga County 4-H Livestock Club. Her hobbies are working with animals, FFA, participating at the Tioga County Fair, collecting pigs, running, being with friends and walking in the rain. She owns two dairy animals on her family's farm, Chrisden, a 133-acre farm with 140 Holsteins, of which 73 are milkers.

Five Dairy Maids will also take part in the local events. They are Becky Bechtel, 15, daughter of Robert and Dianne Bechtel of Covington; Erin Gummo, 14, daughter of Don and Jackie Gummo of Wellsboro; Cathleen Norman, 15, daughter of Ernest and Dorothy Norman of Liberty; Trish Sweely, 14, daughter of Roger and Sue Sweely of Mansfield; and Heather Wood, 13, daughter of Tim and Jill Wood of Mansfield.

Prior to the crowning, awards were given to those recognized by the dairy industry.

Gabe Greco of Mansfield, owner of Greco's Super Duper of Mansfield and Wellsboro, received a plaque for his contributions and continued support to the dairy industry.

Erick and Dixie Coolidge of Wellsboro were Tioga County's recipients of the Dairy of Distinction Award. Presenting the award were District 17 Representative LaRue Thomas of Wellsboro and Dairy of Distinction President Dan Baker of Covington.

FATHER'S DAY STRAWBERRY PIE

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cornstarch

Combine in a small saucepan. Cook over medium high heat until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat. Stir the following into the mixture:

3 tablespoons strawberry Jell-O powder

Let mixture cool while washing, hulling, and slicing

1 pint fresh strawberries

In a 9-inch deep dish pie crust, baked according to directions, spread the following:

4 ounces cream cheese, softened

Top with sliced berries. Cover with cooled strawberry Jell-O mixture. Chill at least one hour.

Just before serving, whip 4 ounces heavy whipping cream for pie topping and spread on pie.

The pie can be made one day ahead of time. It is best made with fresh strawberries and is an annual treat with our family as soon as our berry patch ripens. My father gets a pie on Father's Day as well as my husband who is also a daddy now.

I grew up on a family dairy farm that consisted of 100 acres and registered Holsteins. I was an active 4-H'er for 11 years with projects in dairy, foods, and sewing. I am also a former (1978-79) dairy princess for Baltimore/ Harford counties, Maryland.

My husband Clayton, daughter Corinne Joy (15 months) and I live on a small farm in Jarrettsville. Our little piece of land is only 10 acres where we have lived for 2½ years. While Clay is employed full time as a blacksmith-ornamental craftsman, we do have a small hog operation consisting of 2 sows and a boar—all Yorkshire/ Hampshire Crossbreds. We raise the piglets to butchering weight—some which are sold to friends and neighbors—and the balance sent to the livestock auction.

We have a large garden plus a few fruit trees. Summer and autumn are busy with much canning and freezing of the bounty. After working 7½ years as a cytotechnologisy (medical laboratory specialist) I am thankful to now be a full-time homemaker to "Hold down the fort" and to introduce my daughter to the privilege of growing up as a country kid. At this time, she is fascinated with picking up rocks and throwing them in a bucket. We've made the most of this activity by having her work in the garden with us. Corinne gets such a kick out of discovering all the rocks she can between the rows and adding them to the bucket.

Besides cooking and gardening, my other interests include sewing, photography, crafts, researching my family genealogy and being active in the ministries of our local church fellowship.

CAULIFLOWER CHEESE SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
½ cup shredded carrots
¼ cup chopped onion
2 cans cream of potato soup, undiluted

7-ounce can whole kernel corn, drained

⅛ teaspoon pepper

In a saucepan, simmer water, butter, carrots, and onion until tender. Stir in soup, milk, corn, and cauliflower. Heat thoroughly. Just before serving, stir in the cheese and pepper. Serve immediately.

This soup is nutritious and delicious. It made a big hit for the family. I hope you enjoy it.

My husband Al and I along with our son Mike reside on a 55-acre farm in Jefferson Township, Berks County. My in-laws own the farm we call home. They mainly raise sheep, but there are other critters too numerous to mention.

My husband drives truck, helps around the farm, and enjoys gunsmithing.

As for myself, I am employed full time at Adelphi Kitchens in Robesonia as a sanding foreman and I bake and decorate cakes as well as do many other crafts. I enjoy collecting tins and baskets and being with other people.

My husband Al took me away from the city 22 years ago. I didn't know hay from straw until I tossed a hundred bales or so. And guess what? I love it in the country and I'd never move back to the city.

I joined Berks County Society of Farm Women 5, 17 years ago and have served every office in the organization.

CAROB CREPES

Batter:
6 eggs
2½ cups milk
¼ cup carob powder
2 cups flour

Place on a serving plate and cool.

Whip cream, adding vanilla and honey. Put a heaping tablespoon of cream mixture on each crepe and roll up. Serve topped with extra cream or a sauce. These are very good and filling.

I am 12 years old and have been cooking and baking since age 10. I like to try new recipes and am collecting them into a cookbook. I look forward to Lancaster Farming every week to look in B section. I am the oldest of 4 sisters, one brother, and one on the way. We live on a 120-acre farm where we raise vegetables and have two greenhouses. We have 2 goats that we milk, which give 2 gallons a day so I make pudding a lot. We use honey and whole wheat flour in our baking.

Combine contents of ice cream mix and chocolate milk in a large bowl. Add milk slowly and stir until dissolved. Add remaining ingredients. Pour mixture into freezing container and freeze until firm. Makes 6 quarts.

1½ cups sour cream or 1 cup milk

This recipe is one of my favorite ways to make potatoes. It seems whenever we serve them this way, we get lots of compliments. We used this recipe for my sister's wedding. We made them before the wedding and froze them until it was time to get them ready and it worked out real good.

I am a young girl and we live on a dairy farm. I enjoy working outside. Barn work, baking, cooking, and sewing are also down my line.

MICRO-WAVE RICE PUDDING

3 cups milk
½ cup minute rice
1 package vanilla pudding, not instant
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup raisins

Mix ingredients in a deep bowl. Microwave 4 minutes and stir. Microwave 4 minutes more and stir. If pudding is not done, microwave 1 to 2 minutes more. Cover with wax paper. Refrigerate until ready to eat.

Delicious.

We were dairy farmers way back. We raised registered Holsteins and all replacements.

The girls were in 4-H dairy calf club for 10 years and showed their animals in 4-H Roundup and county fairs.

However, this was more than 20 years ago. For the past 22 years, we went to a smaller farm where we raised corn, hay, and steers. However, things changed drastically when my husband took ill and passed away one year ago.

I still live on the farm, keeping myself very busy. The land is rented to a good farmer. My family always loved the farm.

1 loaf bread made into stuffing
½ cup flour
3 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste

We live on a farm in West Virginia bordering on Cheat River. We raise hogs and have beef cattle. We have Landrace hogs that my husband has been taking to the West Virginia State Fair for around 30 years.

We have five sons living and one dead. They went to the fair until they grew up and left home.

We are by ourselves now and don't get around so good as we once did so our farm work has slowed down.

⅔ cup nuts

I lived on a dairy farm in upstate New York from 1984-1988. We farmed 226 acres and had a herd of 90. I was a city girl prior to moving on a farm. Once I got adjusted to the lifestyle farming has to offer, I loved it. My favorite time was being with the cows at milking time and whenever the opportunity presented itself. I very much miss working with the cows and look for times when I can be around them. Who knows, maybe someday I can put my job behind me and become a hired hand for milking.

DELICIOUS GERMAN SWEET CHOCOLATE PIE

1 package German sweet chocolate OR ½ cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
¼ cup butter
1 can evaporated milk plus add regular milk to make 1⅔ cups
1½ cups sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
10-inch pie crust, unbaked

Melt chocolate and butter. Stir until blended. Remove from heat. Gradually add milk. Stir. Set aside. Mix sugar, salt, and cornstarch thoroughly. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Gradually blend in chocolate mixture. Pour into pie shell. Bake 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes or until lightly browned. The pie will not be firm. Cool and refrigerate at least four hours before serving. Top with whipped cream.

I'd rather have this pie not baked long enough than overbaked. If overbaked, the pie will lose its smooth creamy texture.

I don't know if this recipe will win a prize, but at our house, it wins first prize every time. My husband loves chocolate and this is his favorite dessert.

It was originally a German chocolate pie with coconut and pecans but I omit those ingredients.

¼ cup ground dry roasted peanuts
1 chocolate bar, grated

Spread whipped cream on top and sprinkle with nuts and chocolate. Cool 6 hours before serving.

My husband, Cliff, and I rent a house on my great uncle's farm. Our 11-month-old daughter, Rebekah, loves the farm animals. She gets excited when we take her to the barns to see them.

My husband works at a sawmill and I'm a stay-at-home Mom. I'm also enrolled in a writing course with the Institute of Children's Literature. We do have our own garden at my husband's parents' farm.

GOOEY BUTTER BARS

Heat oven to 350°.

Crust:

1 package yellow cake mix plus
½ cup butter
1 large egg
1 tablespoon water

Mix together with mixer at low speed just until crumbly. Press into bottom of ungreased 9"x 13" baking pan and set aside.

Topping:

1 8 oz. package cream cheese, softened
1 pound box confectioners' sugar
2 large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream cream cheese and confectioners' sugar. Add eggs and vanilla and beat until smooth. Pour over crust pressed into pan. Bake for 25-30 minutes or until light golden brown. Remove from oven, cool on wire rack. When cooled, sift confectioners' sugar lightly over top. Cut into 1½ "x3" bars.

I was raised on a farm. I am one of 12 children. Besides my parents and the kids, my grandparents lived with us.

Great bowls of food were placed on our table. Mother never used a recipe. I guess we (the kids that is) learned to improvise also. I know I did. I may look at a recipe and put other things in it. Just like this recipe. I changed the flavor by using different flavors of cake mixes such as spice, chocolate fudge, lemon, etc. and also I changed the flavor of the topping by adding extracts like coconut, mint with green food coloring, chocolate chips, etc.

It's amazing the tastes you can get from one recipe. I love experimenting. When I worked at the hospitals, I enjoyed tantalizing the taste buds of my fellow employees.

SOUR CREAM CHOCOLATE CHIP CAKE

2 cups flour
1½ cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1⅓ cups sour cream
⅔ cup butter, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup chocolate pieces

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 13x9-inch pan. Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup. In large bowl, combine first nine ingredients. Blend 1 minute at low speed; beat 3 minutes at medium speed. Pour half of batter into greased pan.

In a small bowl, combine ½ cup sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle ½ of sugar mixture and chocolate pieces over batter. Repeat with remaining batter, sugar mixture, and chocolate pieces. Bake 35 to 40 minutes until toothpick comes out clean.

My husband and I live in a log cabin in northern Harford County, Maryland. We're about 10 miles from the Pennsylvania line. I love to cook, can, and bake. When we first designed our house, the kitchen and pantry were first.

My husband had been involved with truck farming at his uncle's farm. We always have plenty of green beans and tomatoes to can.

My husband did most of the finish work on our house. It took a long time to finish the house working part time on the house and full time elsewhere.

I learned how many ways to cook on the gas grill, electric fry pan and microwave until our water was in and we had enough of the kitchen complete to put in the stove and new microwave.

Now we schedule our days off to visit Lancaster whenever we can. On Tuesdays, we stop at Root's Market, visit Stauffers, and Wilburs. On the way home, we often stop at Willow Valley for their market and then a big lunch or

CORN PUDDING

2 cups grated corn
2 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
2 tablespoons flour

Mix all ingredients together. Pour into greased baking dish and bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes. Serves 6.

This is a simple dish to make and one I like to take to family reunions. We live on a 300-acre farm where they milk 80 cows. We all enjoy living on the farm where my husband works. I grow flowers for drying and am one of four managers at the Re-Uzit Shop, New Holland, a MCC related gift and thrift shop. We have a 15-year-old son who also enjoys farming and a 12-year-old daughter.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Among the old papers that I sorted a few months ago, one sticks in my mind as being quite interesting. It was written December 5, 1872.

This was an agreement between a Henry Forney and his tenant Peter Franckhauser of East Lampeter Township in Lancaster County, Pa. Many conditions were spelled out including giving one-half of all kinds of grain raised to Forney. It was to be threshed and well cleaned and delivered to a mill of the landlord's choice not more than four miles from the premises. When planting, four quarts of clover seed and three quarts of timothy seed were to be used per acre.

The fences were to be kept in good order and Franckhauser was to board and lodge the hands employed in putting up new fences. He was to haul rails not exceeding twelve miles from said premises.

Only eight head of cattle were allowed in the pasture before haymaking and two of them were the landlord's cows. No sheep or hogs of other persons were allowed in the pasture.

The tenant was to perform many duties without charge. Some were: "keep lane repaired, keep down weeds, pick up loose stones in fields, spend 1 day in water ditch on premises, whitewash the barn, hogsty, and roof, yard and garden fences and covering of dung yard wall." Plus, work for Forney whenever requested to do so.

The landlord could take as much long rye straw as he wanted and also the walnuts of one tree of his choice. The tenant was not allowed to "keep or lay up meat in the house except in the cellar." And if he accomplished all of these duties, then he was to pay Henry Forney, his heirs or assigns the sum of forty-five dollars lawful money the first day of October. This was a one year contract and the farmer agreed to surrender and yield up said premises in good order and repair at the end of the year.

It seems to me that the tenant had a big job ahead of him.

CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING

1¼ cup soft bread crumbs
6 ounces chocolate chips
2 cups milk
2 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Combine bread crumbs, ⅓ cup chocolate chips, ¼ cup sugar, and 1½ cups milk in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water until mixture is smooth. Beat egg yolks slightly; add remaining ½ cup milk, butter, and salt. Add to chocolate mixture and continue cooking about 3 to 5 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Turn into shallow baking dish. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 10 minutes.

While pudding is baking, beat egg whites until stiff, gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar and vanilla. Continue beating until very stiff. Fold in ½ of the remaining chocolate chips. Drop by tablespoon on top of the pudding. Sprinkle remaining bits on top of meringue. Return to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Serves 6.

We live on a farm that's about 58 acres. My husband no longer farms it, but one of our sons does the crop farming. He raises mostly corn and soybeans. He and one of his brothers are also in the greenhouse business. They have 15 greenhouses. The busy season has just passed for them. They grow Easter plants, bedding plants, hanging baskets, geraniums, mums, and poinsettias.

By the way, we had seven sons and one daughter. They range in ages from 18 to 36. The youngest children are twins. They had one year of college and they expect to go back again in the fall. We like to play games when the whole family gets together.

My husband found this recipe for chocolate bread pudding years ago in a magazine. I made it and they all liked it. It has been a favorite of the family ever since.

CHOCOLATE BUTTERMILK TORTE

Cake Ingredients:
1½ cups sugar
10 tablespoons butter
1⅔ cups all-purpose flour
1½ cups buttermilk
¾ cup unsweetened cocoa
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon salt
2 large eggs
4 1-ounce square semi-sweet chocolate (for decoration)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Grease 10" by 2½" springform pan; line bottom of pan with waxed paper; grease waxed paper.

In large bowl, with mixer at low speed, beat sugar and butter just until blended. Increase speed to high; beat 10 minutes or until light and fluffy, scraping bowl often with rubber spatula. Reduce speed to low; add flour, buttermilk, cocoa, baking soda, vanilla extract, salt, and eggs; beat until well mixed, constantly scraping bowl. Increase speed to high; beat 2 minutes, occasionally scraping bowl.

Spoon batter into springform pan, spreading evenly. Bake 45 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center of cake comes out clean. Cook cake in pan or wire rack, 10 minutes. With spatula, loosen cake from edge of pan; invert onto wire rack. Peel off paper and cool completely.

While cake is cooling you can use the semi-sweet chocolate squares to make chocolate curls and the butter-cream frosting.

Buttercream Frosting
One 16-ounce package confectioners' sugar
6 tablespoons butter, softened
3 tablespoons half-and-half
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract

In large bowl, with mixer at medium speed, beat all ingredients together until smooth. Add more half-and-half until frosting is smooth, with an easy spreading consistency. Reserve ¾ cup frosting into decorating bag with large writing tube; set aside.

Cover top and side of cake with remaining frosting. With frosting in decorating bag, pipe circle of small dollops around edge on top of cake, then pipe another circle of smaller dollops 3 inches from edge of cake. Press some chocolate curls onto side of cake; sprinkle remaining curls in between 2 circles of dollops on top of cake. Refrigerate cake if not serving right away.

DIRT

16 ounces Oreo cookies
Crush cookies and set aside
Beat together and set aside:
¼ cup softened butter
8 ounces cream cheese
1 cup confectioners' sugar
Beat together and set aside:
2 packages French vanilla instant pudding
3½ cups milk
Mix thoroughly and add:
8 ounces whipped cream topping

Mix together pudding and cream cheese mixtures. Put some cookie crumbs in the bottom of a plastic 2-quart flower pot. Put half the pudding mixture on top of the crumbs. Add more crumbs on top of pudding. Add the remaining pudding. On top of the pudding add the remaining crumbs. Wrap a silk flower branch with plastic wrap and put it in center of the pot. For added fun, kids love to find gummy worms in the dirt.

Recipe variation: Instead of vanilla pudding, use chocolate. Instead of chocolate cookies, use vanilla...you guessed it, now you have sand. Serve your sand in a child's plastic sand bucket with a sand shovel.

This is one of my favorite recipes. I take it to most of our family get-togethers. One of my favorite times was when we had friends over for dinner. I asked Carl if he was ready for dessert, he promptly answered, "yes." You should have seen his eyes when he saw me spoon into the centerpiece!

We raise beef cattle on my husband's parents' farm. My husband Dave has the cattle spoiled rotten. I love to see him walk through the meadow with his "babies" trailing behind him.

My interests are my jobs: mother of two boys, Matthew and Michael, "cafeteria lady" at the Herbert Hoover Elementary School, and the family contact person for the Maple Syrup Urine Disease Family Support Group. One more thing—I love to cook but not do the dishes!

We are a young couple, married for 2 years. My husband started farming 2 weeks before we were married and has been ever since. I am his dairy maid. We have 2 girls, Emily 15 months, and Aremina, 1½ months. They both were introduced to the barn at 2 weeks of age and both love it very much. It keeps one busy with two little ones and a farm but we both enjoy it. As for milk- we three together drink at least a gallon a day. Sometimes more. Nothing tastes better than a cold cup of milk!

2¼ cups all-purpose flour

Beat butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, continuing to beat 5 minutes until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, vanilla, and salt, beat well. Add flour in 3 additions, mix well after each addition; dough will be stiff. Fill cookie gun and form cookies. Bake 8 to 10 minutes at 400 degrees, do not overbake. Makes 6 to 7 dozen cookies.

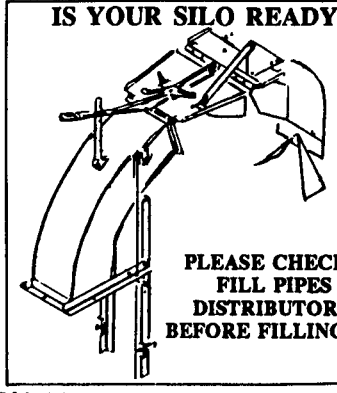
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

THE kränzle PUMP MAKES THE DIFFERENCE:

The kränzle pump is direct drive. No belts or pulleys to tighten. No moving external parts for user safety. The direct drive pump gives us greater motor bearing life and allows us to produce 10-15% more PSI & GPM than a crankcase pump. All pumps run at 1800 RPM for longer life.

Brass head CU ZN39PB$_3$; Plungers triplex ceramic: Packing, teflon with moylbdene, which gives us long life even if run dry. Valves stainless cartridge (1.4303) will draw water 9' from open vessel. Pump can be easily serviced - no special tools needed.

We live on a farm. We raise corn, oats, and barley. We don't have any cows. We have a big garden and farm three farms. We also have hay that we make in the summer.

BROCCOLI-CHEESE SOUP

¾ cup onions, chopped
6 cups hot water
6 chicken bouillon cubes
8 ounces fine noodles
6 cups milk
8 to 16 ounces Velveeta cheese, cubed
20-ounces frozen broccoli, chopped

In Dutch oven, saute onions in a little oil or butter until tender. Add hot water and bouillon cubes. Bring to a boil. Add noodles; cook until done. Add milk and cheese according to taste. Add broccoli. Heat about 5 minutes.

Hint: thaw fish in milk. The milk draws out the frozen taste and provides a fresh-caught flavor.

My husband Glenn and I live on a 61 acre farm that has some woodland but most is being farmed. We have lived here almost 30 years, all my married life. Glenn farms and works at USG second shift.

We have two sons, Jeff and Mike, and a daughter Teresa. Jeff works at JLG Cranes and helps some on the farm. Mike is a mechanic at Skyline Drive Automotive and helps a little on the farm.

He and his wife Terry have one daughter, Jennifer, and she has a daughter, Chris. Teresa works at Festival Foods and is a substitute teacher and is trying to get a full-time teaching job this fall. Chemistry is her major.

At present, we have only sheep, cats, and dogs.

We are vey much into recycling and try buying products that are in recyclable containers. I always did save papers and cardboard but in Teresa's field, she told us what else we could do. I conserve all the water I can, even more so than before.

We had a dairy herd, chickens, and raised hogs 12 years ago, but with Glenn working away from home, it got to be too much for him to handle so now he is a part-time farmer but still kept busy.

My name is JoAnn George. My husband's name is Robert. We have six children ages 5 to 16. As you can imagine, my day and night is pretty hectic. Aside from taking care of everybody, I have a growing craft business. I especially love making my cows. I design them in wood and fabric. That's why the cows prizes caught my eyes. I love to cook and bake. Currently we are building a farmhouse on five acres. My husband milked cows not too long ago. We would like to get a couple of animals for the children to play with.

I'm an Air Force brat married 11 years to a farmer. In March of this year, we finally started milking on our own. We have 3 children, Barbara, 10; Melinda, 9; and Matthew, 6. We enjoy playing volleyball together. I love to sew —especially gowns for weddings. I also make baskets and other crafts. We live at one place and milk five minutes up the road. Maybe later on the running back and forth won't be so bad.

Thanks for some great recipes.

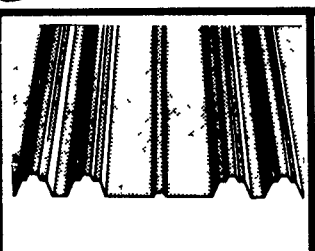
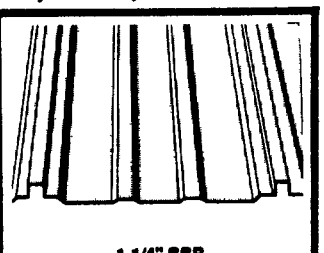
GRANDRIB 3 GALVANIZED STEEL
Grandrib 3 has a full 36" coverage with 3/4" deep ribs every 9". The rib's depth and placement give it exceptional rain carrying capacity. Anti-siphon side lap makes it virtually leak proof.



STRONGRIB ALUMINUM AND PAINTED ALUMINUM
Strongrib's unique profile design makes this versatile panel ideal for exterior roofing and siding as well as an interior liner for ceiling and sidewalls. Twin 3/4" deep ribs every 9" and high strength alloy aluminum give it a uniform load-carry capacity equal to many steel panels.



1 1/4" SSR
The 1 1/4" SSR is a true standing seam roof system, specifically designed for the woodframe and light-gauge steel frame commercial and residential markets. Offering unmatched economy, appearance and weathertightness, the 1 1/4" SSR provides a distinct advantage over other roofing products.

Fabral's steel colors provide years of maintenance-free service to any structure. Our strict quality control standards and painting procedures assure you of receiving a superior finish every time. Each steel coil is prepared for painting by an alkali cleaning, hot water rinsing, application of pre-treatment, cold water rinsing, acid sealing rinsing and thorough drying. The epoxy coating, formulated to provide corrosion resistance and to interact with the topcoat is applied and oven cured. The exterior finish coat is applied and oven cured to provide a durable, tough finish.

The PAR heat lamp's optical system and precise beam pattern not only warm the farrow, but separate it from the sow. The piglets are maintained at a healthy temperature.

Lamp Keeps Piglets Warm, Saves Money

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Saving piglets is as important in hog production as saving money. The energy efficient 175-watt PAR infrared heat lamp helps do both.

The PAR heat lamp's optical system and precise beam pattern not only warm the farrow, but separate it from the sow. The piglets are maintained at a healthy temperature.

According to Philips, there is a 30 percent energy savings compared to other 250-watt heat lamps. At $.10 per kilowatt hour, the savings come to $37.50 over the life of the lamp.

Philips PAR heat lamps fit into standard sockets and are resistant to urine and water splash damage.

For more information about the heat lamps, call (800) 631-1259 and ask for the Lighting Team. The lamp is sold locally by E.M. Herr, Inc., Willow Street.

There'll Soon Be Leaner Lamb

DENVER, Colo.— Consumers will get a taste of leaner American lamb in the future, thanks to a new grading program promoted by industry leaders.

The new grading standards combine quality and yield factors, resulting in consistently lean, high-quality cuts of American lamb.

"Our goal is to give consumers the kind of product they are demanding in the meat case," said Jim Magagna, president of the American Lamb Council. "This grading system is the tool we need to produce a consumer-preferred product."

Not only will American lamb be leaner, but industry leaders say the standards represent a commitment from lamb producers to provide a meat product that meets the consumer's demands in every way, guaranteeing superb taste and high quality in every cut.

AASP Takes Aim At Sarcoptic Mange

DES MOINES, Iowa — In an effort to arrest the spread of mange in U.S. swine herds, the American Association of Swine Practitioners (AASP) launched an educational campaign to increase producer awareness of subclinical mange and the major economic losses it can cause.

"An estimated 90 percent of U.S. swine herds are infested with mange, though most of it is subclinical and goes undetected," said Dr. Gary Dial, AASP president.

"Research has given us the knowledge and technology not only to control mange, but to eliminate it from a herd. There's simply no reason for mange to be a major disease problem any more. As veterinarians, we have a responsibility to help producers fight this costly disease."

Dr Beth Lautner of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) supports the AASP effort. "Producers can increase the productivity and quality of their herd by developing a control or elimination program for mange," she said. "Any program that will heighten awareness of the effects of this parasite will be an asset to the U.S. pork industry as a means of reducing unnecessary losses.

"The industry is making significant strides in improving herd health and pork quality," she said. "Reducing or eliminating mange is another good management practice for producers interested in quality assured pork production."

Along the way, she said, producers can enhance productivity and increase profits in their operations.

"Sarcoptic mange is not simply a cosmetic problem in swine herds," said Del Birkhofer, swine product manager for the Merck AgVet Division, Merck & Co., Inc., which is providing grants and technical assistance for the AASP effort. "It is the most prevalent and economically significant skin disease in swine, even at low, subclinical levels."

Birkhofer says research trials show that mangy sows consume more feed on a per-piglett and per-pound-of-piglet basis than "clean" sows, and piglets without mange can reach their genetic potential to gain weight more efficiently than infested piglets. At later stages of growth, mange-free grower and feeder pigs show increased weight gain and a better average daily gain than infested pigs, he says.

Feed-efficiency data from one research trial shows a producer with a 100-head sow herd producing 1,800 pigs a year could realize increased income of more than $9,000 per year by maintaining a manage-free herd, Birkhofer said.

The AASP campaign will include public service advertisements in print and broadcast media, in addition to educational literature and press materials developed to increase producer awareness of mange.

With the announcement of the campaign, the AASP put producers on alert that veterinarians are going to be more aggressive in talking with them about mange on their farms, according to Dr. Dial. He also challenged producers to "beat your veterinarian to the punch" and contact him or her about developing a more comprehensive mange control or elimination program.

The AASP is now distributing new educational materials to veterinarians through their state veterinary medical associations, Dial said.

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Penn State Extension Sheep Specialist

Who is Interested in Marketing?

Everybody? Not so! In fact, the results tabulated from the latest producer survey may just reveal where the real problem is in attempting to address this basic industry concern—how to strengthen our image in the marketplace?

The rank of sheep producers concerned about production economics and market development seems small, but I hope there exsists a cooperative effort and serious committment to this effort.

The Pennsylvania Lamb Marketing Board, in cooperation with the USDA Agricultural Cooperative Service, recently surveyed some 550 sheep producers in an effort to acquire some benchmark data for futher developing the state's lamb marketing program. Of the producers surveyed, 230 returned a completed form sharing their respective views on lamb marketing, of which only 69 producers seriously indicated their support in developing a statewide cooperative lamb marketing program.

I am certain to learn more about this marketing effort being initiated by the PDA/Lamb Marketing Board, the result will be more producer committment and collaboration.

It is important to realize that the producer survey results, important as they are, only provides one of three major facets for developing a successful and sustainable marketing program. Now that we have some useful production and producer data that to date indicates potential lamb supplies, we still need a better understanding of what exists or is needed within the retail trade and likewise what are on the minds of our potential consumer. In other words, what is needed to make our commodity more competitive as well as more appealing in the meat case?

The USDA/Agriculture Cooperative Service along with your recent checkoff quarters and supplemental grant monies are being used to acquire this information as well. Contacts have already been made to work with the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) and the PDA/Lamb Marketing Board to utilize existing survey data as well as acquire additional information on both the retail market and consumer areas.

For you folks seriously interested in your industry and more specifically lamb marketing in the Northeast, I believe it is time to stand up and take notice and become a team member. Naturally not everybody agrees, but I believe your PDA Lamb Marketing Board is on target and has invested a major portion of your checkoff monies wisely and where they are needed most. Seriously, how well they do as leaders from here on is going to be proportional to your response as producers.

The Lamb Marketing Board has properly identified and sucessfully presented a basic industry need of marketing to the USDA Agriculture Cooperative Service and in turn is receiving the professional services of this government agency. This took a great deal of individual dedication, expertise, and time to bring this effort to this stage of development. Likewise, with a limited amount of your checkoff monies, the PDA Lamb Marketing Board has also successfully acquired additional competitive grant monies that will be used in strengthening the Pennsylvania lamb marketing structure. Again, the success or sustainability of such an endeavor hinges directly on producer commitment and the apparent well-being of the existing industry infrastructure.

I submit to you the summary and recommendations presented in the recent USDA/ACS "Pennsylvania Lamb Producers Survey Report." I encourage every Pennsylvania sheep producer to capture this moment, get involved, and work together for the good of your industry.

USDA/ACS Producer Survey May 1992

Summary and recommendations:

Results from the producer survey indicate that 69 producers are interested in the proposed cooperative. Commitment to the proposed cooperative was signified by the apparent willingness of respondents to finance the cooperative through up-front initial investments.

Producers said they marketed 8,853 lambs in 1991 via various channels. This volume may be higher than the cooperative can actually market during its first few years of operation.

Since the survey population was about 33 percent of the total producer population in the state, it may be that actual numbers of producers interested in the proposed cooperative, and numbers of lambs available to be marketed, will exceed totals described in this report. As well, the lambs of interested producers are scattered throughout the state, making coordination more difficult. The exact volume to be handled will be determined by the future board of directors based on information available from a market analysis.

Respondents also appeared willing to adjust current lambing schedules, enabling the proposed cooperative to provide a consistent supply of lamb on a year-round basis. Producers were also generally willing to alter current management programs to provide lambs as specified by the future cooperative.

The willingness of respondents to adjust lambing schedules and alter management pratices will allow a market study to investigate several marketing options for the proposed cooperative. Generally, producers are interested in a marketing venture that will increase the earning potential from their on-farm sheep enterprise. A market analysis will identify options for the cooperative to pursue and generate contacts for the future board to use in developing their marketing strategy. ACS will work with the hired consultant in doing the study.

Based on the results of the producer survey, specific recommendations are to:

- Proceed with a market analysis and selection of a target market(s), ACS recommends preparing a complete set of financial projections to determine the feasibility of the proposed operations. A business plan for the desired cooperative should also be developed. ACS can help with the business plan.
- Develop working relationships with resource personnel in the state. Community support and participation will be helpful to the emerging cooperative business.

New Lamb Grading Standards Will Promote Lener Carcasses

The proposed American Sheep Industry (ASI) revisions in the yield grade standards for lamb carcasses has been passed by USDA and will be implemented July 1, 1992.

John Shoemaker, chairman of the Pennsylvania Cooperative Lamb Marketing steering committee, said, "The yield and quality grade system will give the lamb industry a value-based marketing tool that provides an incentive to produce lean consumer-preferred lambs." He further notes that the past marketing structure encouraged producing fat rather than lean lambs.

Following are the revised grading standards to be applied on July 1, 1992:

1) All sheep carcasses will be identified for quality and yield grade when offically graded.

2) Most all of the kidney and pelvic fat will be removed prior to grading. Fat remaining cannont exceed 1 percent of carcass weight.

3) A shift has been made to narrow the fat thickness range in each yield grade.

4) Leg conformation score will be eliminated Note: Yield grade will basically be determined by backfat thickness over the 12/13 rib as follows:

External B.F. Thickness	Per Cent Lean Yield on Boneless Retail Cuts
Yield grade 1 = up to 0.15 inches	1	≥ 47.3
Yield grade 2 = 0.16 to 0.25 inches	2	47.3 to 45.5
Yield grade 3 = 0.26 to 0.35 inches	3	45.5 to 43.7
Yield grade 4 = 0.36 to 0.45 inches	4	43.7 to 41.9
Yield grade 5 = > 0.46 inches	5	≤ 41.9

OPPORTUNITIES FOR POULTRY SCIENCE MAJORS

William D. Weaver, Jr.
Department of Poultry Science

The commercial poultry industry, which includes the production, processing, marketing, and sales of poultry meat and eggs, is a major producer of protein-rich foods for the American consumer, and is continuing to grow.

In fact, the meat segments of the poultry industry continue to be one of the fastest growing portions of agriculture. Per capita consumption of poultry is more than 90 pounds and represents the number one meat consumed in the U.S. Furthermore, several of the large broiler companies produce more than a billion dollars in sales annually.

Even though the egg industry has experienced a decline in per-capita consumption for a number of years, a recent and significant increase in the production and sale of further processed egg products (an 18 percent increase over the last 12 months alone) signals a much awaited change in how eggs will be marketed in the future. Some estimates are that between 35 and 60 percent of the eggs produced by the year 2000 will be sold as further processed items and not as shell eggs.

The continued growth in the industry signals the need for a continuous supply of properly trained young people to fill many production, supervisory, management, and technical positions. Historically, poultry science departments have been looked to for young people to fill many of these positions. Unfortunately, the needs of the industry have far outstripped the production of students trained in poultry science.

Certainly it can be argued that industry does not require that all students be trained in a curriculum that offers endless hours of traditional courses in poultry husbandry. Students entering the poultry industry today must be trained in and understand disciplines such as business management, finance, business and agricultural law, and international trade and must possess good interpersonal and communicative (both written and oral) skills.

And yes, they still must have a good basic and working knowledge of the integrated poultry industry and of the biology of the chicken and the turkey. Certainly, the faculty in poultry science departments should not and will not teach all of these courses (in fact they will teach very few). However, most if not all of these required courses are offered and taught in land grant universities where poultry science departments are located and are available for students to take.

The key (or the challenge) is to develop such a curriculum whereby students are offered the courses that will provide them with the best training before entering the large and diverse poultry industry.

The undergraduate curriculum in the Department of Poultry Science at Penn State University is going through a major change and updating to ensure that appropriate courses, courses that will allow students to compete and advance in the industry, are being offered. The changes will include the updating of several poultry courses taught in the department, and the addition of a number of courses taught outside the department and through the university, that will provide the new graduates with the "tools" to become a productive part of the poultry industry in the next century.

The poultry industry typically looks to poultry science departments for research and extension education programs and only secondarily to these departments for new employees. Well-trained students should be our most favored commodity. Who else is better equipped than the faculty in poultry science departments to bring the teaching resources of the entire university together to train the future leaders of the poultry industry?

CRP Sign-Up Continues

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — County offices of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have opened the 12th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) signup period, based on new provisions. Bids will be accepted through June 26, according to State ASCS Executive Director Donald Unangst.

The CRP offers annual rental payments and cost-share assistance to establish permanent vegetative cqver on cropland that is highly erodible or contributing to a serious water quality problem. under the program, more than 35 million acres have been enrolled.

"This will be the only opportunity farmers have to offer bids for the 1993 crop year," said Unangst, "and the first time to submit separate bid types for each tract of land. This will provide an opportunity to formulate bids that are more reflective of the actual value of the offered acres."

He said bids on eligible land will be selected based on environmental benefits obtained per dollar of cost to the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). Eligible CRP land includes cropland that has been planted or is considered planted to produce an agricultural commodity in two of the five crop years from 1986 through 1990 and is physically and legally capable of continued crop production.

Currently there are nearly 99,000 acres enrolled in CRP in Pennsylvania. CRP bids accepted in Pennsylvania ranged from $30 to $90 per acre per year depending on environmental benefits obtained per dollar of cost to CCC.

Land eligibility requirements have been expended to include water quality benefits under CRP, said Rex Wright, state conservation specialist for ASCS. Eligible land now includes areas identified with water quality impairment, designated priority areas, and public wellhead areas identified by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Public wellheads are sources of water for municipalities. Areas designated by states as sources of water quality problems may also be eligible for the CRP.

According to Wright, CRP priority enrollment practices established on cropland having special or contributing to significant environmental problems relating to water quality or soil erosion will require that the owner grant the CCC a useful life easement for not less than 15 years. The easement will specify the manner in which the owner may develop or use the property, permit the owner to use the easement area for purposes that do not interfere with CCC's interest, and be attached to the land records for the useful life of the practice.

Priority enrollment practices include permanent wildlife habitat for no more than 10 percent of the total cropland acres on the farm, wildlife corridors that provide a travel area between 2 or more existing wildlife areas, windbreaks, shelterbelts, living snow fences, sod waterways, contour grass strips, and salinity reduction measures.

The ASCS official said a conservation plan must be developed and approved by the local conservation district for accepted acreage. The plan will specify the conservation measures and maintenance requirements to be carried out by the owner or operator during the terms of the contract. Bid acceptance determinations will be made by USDA after a nationwide review and evaluation.

Sets Evaluation

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Cooperative Extension, in cooperation with the Sheep and Wool Growers, will conduct an on-foot on-rail lamb evaluation at the following:

On-Foot Evaluation, Tuesday, July 7, 6:30 p.m. lamb registration, 7 p.m. live evaluation at Peters Bros., Lenhartsville.

Carcass Evaluation, Thursday, July 9, 7 p.m. carcass evaluation, Peters Bros., Lenhartsville.

The purpose of this event is to allow producers a chance to evaluate live animals and the same animals on the rail. Not only will this event sharpen producers' judging eye, it will also allow them to understand and observe meat characteristics.

To enter a lamb or attend the event to sharpen your live evaluation skills, call Clyde Myers, Penn State extension agent, Berks County; at (215)378-1327. Deadline is June 25. There is no charge to participate.

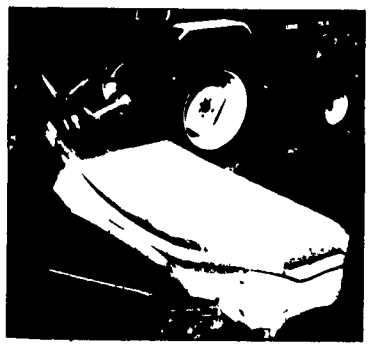
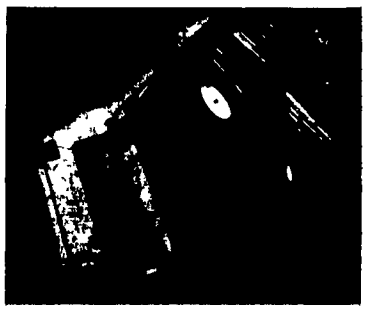
Survival of the fittest.



Farming is tough. Only the best managers survive. The same is true for the companies that build the equipment you use. Kuhn has made a long term commitment to supply you with the best equipment, parts and service money can buy. We didn't become the world's largest disc mower manufacturer by accident. Cheap imitations come . . and go. But you can rely on Kuhn to be there when you need us

Lots of disc mowers have come and gone, but only one has proven it's got what it takes — Kuhn.

Cut and dried.



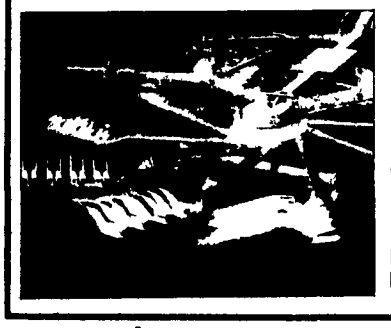
Kuhn's FC series of Mower Conditioners — faster cutting, faster drying, better hay. But what else would you expect from the recognized worldwide leader in mower/conditioner technology? Kuhn applied over 160 years of research to build a mower/conditioner that cuts quicker (7-9 m.p.h. — 6-7-1/2 acres/hour) and requires less dry down than many other systems on the market. And Kuhn's FC series is easy on your crop. With a choice of finger comb or roller conditioning, you can match your crop type for even and gentle conditioning with less nutrient loss.

Available in 6'7" 3-point, and 8'2", 9'10" and 11'6" pull-types, Kuhn's FC series of Mower/Conditioners is the answer to producing a superior crop.

Check out this open and shut case by seeing your Kuhn dealer today!

KUHN HAYMAKER TO THE WORLD

A turn for the better.



Kuhn's Gyrorake turns haymaking upside down with the 3-in-1 rake, windrow inverter and tedder. Windrow inversion is an essential process that not only allows hay to dry faster, but also decreases leaf loss as it increases nutrient levels. Get the job done fast with a Kuhn Gyrorake It lets you match rotor and ground speeds to your crop conditions for gentle, efficient inverting

But when it comes to Kuhn Gyrorakes, windrow inversion is just part of the story The GA series offers gentle, high speed raking without roping. Side delivery enables you to double windrow And if needed, the Gyrorake also is an effective tedder for fluffing and drying hay

Kuhn Gyrorakes — taking a turn for the better so you'll turn out better hay.

Kuhn's 3-Point Bale Wrapper

Protect your valuable hay crop — and profits — with Kuhn's 3-Point Bale Wrapper. The Bale Wrapper stretches and then tightly seals plastic wrap all around the bale, preventing water seepage, temperature variation that may lead to mold development. Take advantage of this easy and economical method for producing top quality silage.

- Wraps silage bales 4 1/2 feet in length, weighing up to 2200 lbs
- Film prestretch unit stretches plastic up to 70%
- Bi-directional turntable for quick loading & unloading
- Wrap turntable with large diameter double drive rolls eliminates the need for linking belts.
- Free wheeling rear roller protects plastic from damage when bale is ejected from wrap table
- Optional electronic monitor controls film thickness and counts bales
- Towed model also available

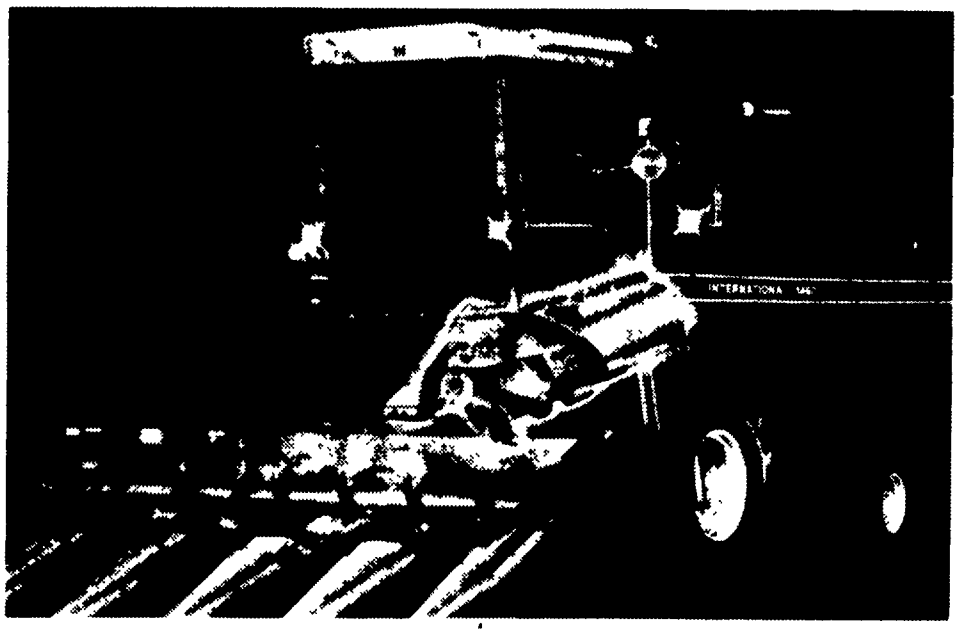
YOU DON'T NEED TO BE A MATHEMATICIAN TO LEARN THE 3 LAWS OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES. YOU ONLY NEED TO TRY ONE.

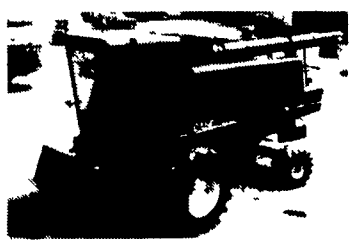


1st LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES

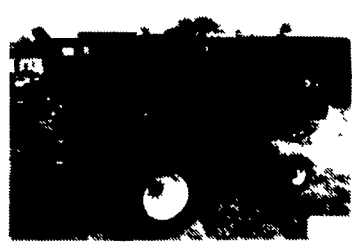
FOURTEEN (14) YEARS OLD IS NOT EQUAL TO (=) WORN OUT

Because of the simple design of the CASE IH Axial Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by Hoober's expert combine mechanics to like new condition, so they will provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.

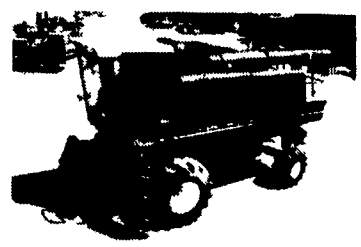
2nd LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES



IH 1460, 1985, 2191 Hrs., 30.5x32 & 18.4x16.1, AC, AHHC, Spinrs, Chopr (U6238)



IH 1460, 1981 3000 Hrs., 28Lx26, AC, AHHC (U6454)



IH 1460, 1982, 28Lx26 & 18.4x16.1 AC, AHHC, Feedr Revsr, Spinrs (U6219)

3rd LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES

4,000 HOURS PLUS (+) HOOBER RECONDITIONING EQUALS (=) YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE

4,000 hours on a conventional combine usually means too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow Combines with 4,000 hours reconditioned by Hoober's have proven to run for years when bought by farmers in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

A CASE-IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SERVICED BY EXPERT HOOBER COMBINE MECHANICS EQUALS (=) LITTLE OR NO DOWN TIME DURING HARVEST.

When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service Axial-Flow Combines in the off-season, they run trouble-free through the season.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown taht 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

ELS Manure Pumps & Spreaders Check Ours Before You Buy!

We have a new design manure pump that we feel will chop & pump more solids for the money (and HP). Bearings run in oil. Knives make over 3000 cuts per min. Stationary or portable, manual or hydraulic lift. Rent one or buy one, but be sure to try one! We also have our standard model, works well for less bedding with less HP.

We also have semi & liquid spreaders ground drive in 3 standard sizes, also PTO drive & special orders.

We make expanded metal tractor wheels w or w/o shocks, the wheel with more grip & less slip. Check our prices!

Use our forms to make your own poured walls, round or square pits, retaining walls, basement or barn walls. 2x8 panels up to 190' in one pour. Cheaper & much stronger than block walls filled with concrete. We sometimes have used equipment.

PURINA MILLS, INC.

Dairy Tips By Dr. Randy Lyle, Ph.D.

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

DO SILAGE ADDITIVES MAKE YOUR SILAGE BETTER?

The answer is NO!!! The fact that you use a silage additive on your forage does not make the forage test any better than when it goes in the silo.

The purpose of using a silage additive is to help speed up the fermentation process and to help keep heat from causing to much damage to the forage. There are many types of additives that can be used to complete this job including enzymes and inoculants (bacteria).

Enzymes help break down the carbohydrates in the feed to make it available to the natural bacterial on the plant. The natural bacteria can then use the carbohydrates to complete their job quicker. By using a product which contains inoculant (bacteria) you are simply adding more "bugs" to get the job done quicker.

If you are considering a silage additive to use on your forage compare Purina. Purina has 3 products to choose from: Purina Maxi-Sil

1. Purina Silage Additive - a blend of organic acid and enzymes
2. Purina Dry Silage Inoculant - a complete bacterial inoculant
3. Purina Water Dispersable Silage Inoculant - a complete bacterial inoculant to be mixed with water

IMPORTANT CONSIDERATIONS:
- is there enough additive applied to each lb. of forage to have an effect?
- is the product university tested or researched?
- is the additive mixed well with the forage?
- is the product cost effective?
- does the product have a high enough level of enzyme or bacteria?

If you have these questions about your current product or are considering trying something new call your local Purina Dealer today! You can see the results of Purina Maxi-Sil when the forage test sample comes back!
